NEW GOVERNMENT FOR VENEZUELA BY GOMEZ

Vice President Forced to Replace Ministry With New Body of Men During Castro's Absence.

WHOLE COUNTRY IS IN A STATE OF UNREST

Reorganization Has Been Expected Daily Since Demonstrations, Which Began Almost the Day President Sailed for Europe. May Change Country's Relations With the United States.

PORT OF SPAIN, Dec. 21.—Vice President J. Vincente Gomez, to whom General Cipriano Castro handed over the presidency on his departure for Europe, has established a new government in Venezuela. He has replaced the old ministry with a new body of men who represent various factions in the state and who have figured prominently in recent years in the country's political history.

Not only has Dr. Jose De Jesus Paul disappeared from the councils of the nation, but Dr. Baldo, who is now traveling in Castro's suite abroad, also has been removed from his official position as minister of education. Gen. Diego Ferrer, the minister of war, has been succeeded by General Tulio Ontiveros, who took a prominent part in crushing the revolutionists six years ago.

In State of Siege.

Secret advices from Caracas, where the strictest censorship is being observed, indicate that the whole of Venezuela has been in a ferment ever since Castro sailed and that the crisis was reached a few days ago, when it became necessary for acting President Gomez to take "all the reins."

The constitutional guarantees have been suspended, and it is stated that a plot against the government has been discovered. Many persons have been temporarily charged with being implicated, and later the leaders of the movement have been threatened to leave the country within 48 hours. It is said that some of the leaders have already been shot in secret.

The return of Castro is expected daily and it is said that it is the fear of the consequences which began all at the day that Castro sailed for Europe.

Before leaving, Castro, in proclaiming Gomez to his temporary successor, said to the nation:

"Rebound ... lend your cooperation ... ment of his wisdom as ... myself, and you will have ... duty."

Farewell Message.

In the same proclamation, Castro gave utterance to what might be taken as a farewell message:

"The Venezuelan nation is already on the road to true prosperity and greatness, because of the strict fulfillment of obligations and the condition of the revenues and because of state of peace which we enjoy and. Ask it is your duty to maintain that my work may endure."

On December 14 the people of Caracas rose against Castro. They tore down the statues and pictures of the president and burned them in the public places, they wrecked buildings and attempted to loot, exceeding the mob, the city and gathering strength and fury with every new act of violence. Gomez was far from secure. It was brought forcibly home to him that he must either withdraw from that office or cast aside those of Castro's ministers who still were trying to force the Castro rule upon the people. Apparently he chose the latter course. He first declared the country in a state of defense, securing control of the army and then appointed a new cabinet.

On several other occasions when Castro has turned over the government to Vice President Gomez it was freely predicted that Gomez would succeed Castro as president of the republic. He had many supporters in the anti-Castro camp, chief among those in favor of his candidacy being General Arando, the former minister of war, who worked earnestly to place Gomez in power.

Vice President of Venezuela, Who Has Reorganized Government in Castro's Absence.

Very Change Relations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—That a new cabinet in Venezuela may have an important bearing on the relations of that country with the United States is the opinion of state department officials.

Two elements, however, on the constitution of the new body and whether

COMMITTEE WILL INSPECT RAILROAD

HULIT OUTLINES PLANS AT COUNCIL MEETING.

Will Give Manitou Springs With ... and Canon City Will Be Done to All.

With a view of familiarizing the officials of Colorado Springs with the details of the new electric road being built from Canon City to Colorado Springs via Pueblo, Mayor D. N. Heizer and President C. T. Fertig of the City Council will appoint a committee from the various civic and commercial organizations of this city to investigate the work of the Kansas-Colorado Railroad company, which is constructing the road. This action was decided on by the Council at its regular meeting last night, after an address by A. B. Hulit, financial agent of the company.

Committee Will Investigate.

Mr. Hulit suggested that since the citizens, and especially the business men of this town are vitally concerned in a movement of this kind, and since his company expects financial cooperation from Colorado Springs residents, it is no more than fair that the good faith and practical work of the Kansas-Colorado company be thoroughly investigated. He invited the closest inspection of all the books and contracts of the company, as well as an examination of the actual work already done. At the suggestion of the Mayor that a committee be appointed for this purpose, Alderman John Hill moved that the Mayor and President Fertig appoint this committee. The motion was unanimously carried.

Hulit Outlines Plans.

Mr. Hulit spoke of the great difficulty experienced by the farmers in securing cheap power for irrigation and also of the exorbitant transportation rates, with special reference to freight. He said that this company can supply farmers with power at 3 cents per kilowatt, only one-half the former price, and that passenger rate will be only 2 cents per mile, instead of 3 cents, as at present on the steam lines. He pointed out that the steam railroads charge only $112 per car for transporting cattle from El Paso, Tex., to Kansas City, Mo., a distance of 1,170 miles, and actually charge $112 per car for coal hauled 250 miles within this state. He cited that the railroads, in order to stifle competition at Florence, where they have their own coal fields, refuse a switch to competitors. Also are obliged to haul from their mines to the main line, and then must pay $1.25 per ton for the haul to Pueblo. He promised that his road will put in switches and charge only 75 cents per ton.

National Park Scheme.

The possibilities of the Arkansas valley region are tremendous, in the opinion of Mr. Hulit. He mentioned the projected national park which, with the aid of Senator H. M. Teller and others, he hopes to establish south and west of this city. In this event a spur of the electric railroad will be run to the park from Colorado Springs. Grading on the road has been completed from Pueblo almost half way to this city, and also about half way between Pueblo and Canon City. A franchise will be requested from Colorado Springs when the work is nearer completion, according to Mr. Hulit.

ALDERMAN ALBIN TO RESIGN SOON

WILL MOVE TO HAYDEN, IN ROUTT COUNTY.

Plans to Engage in Meat and Grocery Business.

Carl Albin, who is serving his second consecutive term as alderman from the Sixth Ward, will resign from the city council within a month or six weeks, as soon as he carries out plans for removing to Hayden, Routt county, on the new Moffat road. Although the regular two-year term of each city official expires in April, steps will probably be taken to have the entire administration hold over pending the settlement of the charter question, so that Albin's successor, who will be chosen by the City Council, will serve an indefinite time.

Albin said yesterday that he will go to Hayden next month to start a meat and grocery business, and also to take the initial steps, together with a number of Denver men, for the purchase of a tract of land in Hayden. This land will be platted into town lots and made into an addition. Colonization will be taken up, and the real estate business engaged in to a large extent.

Hayden is about 20 miles southwest of Steamboat Springs. The Moffat line has already reached Steamboat Springs, and the graders are now headed for Hayden, which is expected to become one of the leading coal mining camps of the west.

Mr. Albin's family will remain at their home, 614 South Nevada avenue, this city, until he arranges for their permanent removal to Hayden.

KILLED WIFE; SLEPT WELL

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Dec. 21.—J. K. Thomas was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the murder of his divorced wife, on July 18, last. His attorneys gave notice of appeal to the supreme court, and also of their intention to take the case into the federal courts, declaring Thomas's confession to detectives, which was used against him at the trial, had been secured by threats and torture, and should not have been allowed in evidence. The motion for a new trial was denied.

Thomas killed his wife, slept beside the corpse from midnight till dawn, then burned the body in a potato patch in the woman's garden, where it was discovered two months later.

Driven desperate by imaginary domestic trouble, Wyatt upon the fear that his wife would desert him at the moment of financial difficulty, C. E. Wyatt, a laborer, living at 31 West Vermijo street, last night sought ease of his troubles by swallowing an ounce of laudanum. A moment before he had attempted the fatal step, Wyatt was sitting on a sofa beside his wife planning their Christmas expenditures.

They had disagreed over a present for a friend, when Wyatt sprang to his feet and, [illegible] dramatically exclaimed: "You are tired of me anyhow. All I am good for is to provide you with money to spend."

Then drinking the deadly poison he fell insensible to the floor.

Overcome with horror, several moments elapsed before the woman fully realized the tragedy that had been enacted before her. Then she ran to the telephone and summoned Dr. W. A. Campbell. After several hours' work the physician succeeded in restoring Wyatt.

At a late hour last night Wyatt admitted an officer and newspaper reporter to his home, but declined to be interviewed. His act he attributes to domestic trouble that he refuses to make public.

PITTSBURG COUNCIL MEMBERS ARRESTED

CORRUPT PRACTICES ON PART OF FEW REVEALED.

Civic Reform Organization Uncovers Graft Scandal Second Only to That of Frisco.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 21. Seven members of the City Council were arrested tonight at the instance of the Voters league, a civic reform organization, charged with conspiracy, corrupt practices and bribery in connection with municipal legislation during the last two years.

Alleged acts in establishing depositories for the funds of the city are enumerated in the complaints, and it is said a number of persons occupying official positions in local banks will shortly be arrested.

The Voters league several months ago employed detectives, and the arrests are based on the detectives' reports. Three of the complaints against J. C. Wasson, chairman of the finance committee of the common council, and John F. Klein of that committee, and William Brand, president of the common council, charge these men with giving and offering to give money and other rewards and bribes to influence the votes of other members of the council in favor of the ordinances and resolutions designating depositories for the funds of the city, of which there are five, bridge ordinances and street paving and bond ordinances.

"With the exception of San Francisco graft fame," said a member of the league tonight, "there has never been in this country such a sweeping and such an important movement against invisible office holders involved in this case."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Andrew Carnegie, famous for the millions he made in the steel business and for his views on economic questions, was no entertaining, if not instructive, witness before the House ways and means committee tariff hearing. An article on the tariff, and especially relating to the steel schedule, written by Mr. Carnegie, recently appeared in a monthly magazine. Owing to statements made in that article, it became the basis for the questions asked by the members of the committee at hearings on the steel schedule. As the tes-

Although he was on the stand for nearly eight hours, Mr. Carnegie laughed and joked good naturedly throughout. He exasperated several of the "stand patters" with his epigrammatic replies, praised the genius of Charles M. Schwab, urged the committee to accept the testimony of Judge E. H. It was through the action of the Colorado insurance department under Commissioner Rittenhouse's administration that an investigation of the Provident Savings Life Assurance society was first taken up, nearly a year ago. The Hughes interests were in control of the society, having taken it over from Timothy L. Woodruff and his associates. Later a syndicate of Philadelphia capitalists, headed by John J. Coyle, took charge, and last August the Coyle syndicate sold the control to a southern syndicate headed by Arthur C. Langham of Louisville, Ky., who has since been president of the society. For a time before its rehabilitation under the syndicates which followed the Thomas interests in control, the company was prohibited by the insurance department of Colo-

ONE KILLED, ANOTHER WOUNDED, IN FIGHT OVER THE PROCEEDS FROM STOLEN GOLD

Highgraders, Ex-Convicts, Wage Battle on Streets of Cripple Creek Over Division of Spoils Had Conducted Joint Under the Guise of an Assay Office.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Dec. 21.—As the direct result of a quarrel over the division of moneys obtained in the traffic of stolen high-grade ore, Arthur J. Lake, the ex-convict, lies dead at the morgue, Tony Cuaz, alias Tony Miller, a second ex-convict, lies at the Sisters hospital with a bullet in his right leg, and the county and city officials are searching for Frank Taylor, an alleged accomplice in the crime. "Billy" Lynch, another supposed participant, is under arrest in Victor.

The shooting took place at the corner of Third street and Myers avenue at about 2:55 p. m. today.

Cuaz and Lake, it is asserted, have been conducting a high-grade joint under the guise of an assay office in the basement of the building occupied by the Colorado Liquor company. Archie McKillup, proprietor, yesterday the dispute started over the division of the proceeds, and today Lake and Taylor, who had been sitting in the saloon of the liquor company, were seen to start toward the door as Cuaz approached from the outside. Lake had no sooner opened the door than the trouble began. Eye-witnesses to the affray state that Lake, on passing through the saloon door, saw Tony coming toward him, and he immediately pulled an automatic Colts revolver.

"Before a shot was fired the two clinched in a fight for the possession of the weapon. It is claimed by some of these witnesses that Tony, the smaller of the two, forced the muzzle of the gun away from him towards Lake, as the latter pulled the trigger. Lake fell to the sidewalk with a 38-caliber bullet through his right lung. He died in a few moments without uttering a word.

Taylor, it is said, turned loose on Tony and brought him to the ground with a bullet through the right leg. A crowd gathered at once and Taylor escaped during the confusion.

Cuaz had arisen and was supporting himself by the railing of the basement when the police arrived. He was taken to the hospital in an express wagon. As his wound is not serious, he will recover.

Arthur J. Lake, the deceased convict, was released on parole about eight months ago. Lake, Carl Kuykendahl and L. Friedenstein had been found guilty of assault with intent to kill L. Gloekner, in the Stratton's Independence mine, which they had entered for the purpose of high-grading, in 1902. Friedenstein, who turned state's evidence at the time, was sentenced, [illegible] was released. SWORN TO SECRECY ON PAIN OF DEATH

NIGHT RIDERS' OATH GIVEN FOR FIRST TIME.

State Has Practically Completed Its Case. Story of Whipping of Mrs. Johnson Told in Court.

UNION CITY, Tenn., Dec. 21.—The night rider oath in full is here given for the first time:

"You do solemnly swear in the presence of Almighty God and these witnesses that you desire to become a night rider; that you will not write, talk or tell to anyone the secrets of this order of night riders; that if you do talk, write or tell to any person any of the secrets of the order, you are permitted to do with you as we see fit, and you know death, hell and destruction will be your portion and that your body will not be buried in a graveyard. Do you willingly and freely submit to all this, so help you God?"

UNION CITY, Tenn., Dec. 21.—The state practically completed its case today against the eight alleged night riders on trial for the murder of Captain Rankin, when it drew from Frank Fehringer, a member of the band, a detailed statement, not only of the Rankin tragedy, but of a score or more of other outrages. It also called Mrs. Emma Thurman Johnson, one of two women said to have been whipped by the band, and had her tell her story.

The startling testimony of confessor, Frank Fehringer, involving the men as actual participants in the murder of Captain Rankin, was given with an exactitude of detail that was amazing. As Mrs. Johnson's name was called, a murmur of satisfaction arose, clearly evidencing that she had been whipped, but except the grand jury and prosecuting officers, no one had heard her story.

Mrs. Johnson had married Joe Johnson, a man 20 years older than she, and lived with him nine years when a child was born. Last August she sued him for divorce, charging cruelty and asking maintenance.

Early in September the riders visited her father's home, and left word that she must withdraw the suit. She failed to do so, and on a second visit her father was whipped.

On both occasions she was at her sister's home. The riders seem to have reviewed this, for on September 30 about 11 o'clock at night, they went to the sister's house. Mrs. Johnson awoke to find her bedroom filled with masked and armed men. A man whom she said she recognized as Fred Pinion, one of the defendants, was standing so close that she could touch him.

JUDGE J. E. JONES

"We have come to tell you for the last time that you must dismiss that divorce suit," Pinion is charged with saying.

"I will not withdraw it," she replied.

"You will before we get through with you. If you dismiss it now, we will see that he supports you and the child, but you must not touch his property," was the reply.

Mrs. Johnson obstinately insisted that she would press the case. Then the men filed out into the yard to consult. In a few moments they returned. Pinion, she said, stepped over to the young woman's bed and said: "Come with us."

Two others of the band seized the young woman, dragged her roughly from the bed and hurried her about 200 yards away. They threw her on a log in the woods and one of them beat her across the shoulders with a strap. After the first beating they asked her if she would dismiss the suit. She said no. Then she was again whipped. This time her fighting spirit was broken, and she sobbingly did she would give in to their demands.

"Lets give her another" said one of the band.

"No," Pinion is said to have replied. "She has had enough."

Judge Jones sent out the jury before court adjourned and said: "There are eight defendants here, charged with a capital offense. They are not handcuffed and are under guard of only two deputies. I do not think this safe. Therefore I order the sheriff to handcuff these men and ask the military to detail 10 armed men to serve as guards."

The defense objected vigorously, but the judge refused to withdraw his orders.

The minister had just been giving the class a lesson on the Prodigal Son. At the finish, to test what attention had been paid to the teaching, he asked, "Who was sorry that the Prodigal had returned?" The most forward youngster in the class breathlessly answered, "The fatted calf!"—Home Herald.

JIM FLYNN KNOCKED OUT IN FIRST ROUND

PUEBLO FIREMAN PICNIC FOR BOSTON BLACK.

Langford, Colored Middleweight, Puts Colorado Man to Sleep for Five Minutes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Jim Langford, the colored middleweight, making his first appearance in a local ring, made good with a vengeance and incidentally made short shrift of Jim Flynn of Pueblo, Colo. Langford knocked out his man in the first round after 2 minutes of fighting.

From the outset, it was apparent to those present that Flynn did not have a chance. Langford lost no time in getting into action. No sooner had the men shaken hands than the colored Bostonian went after the Pueblo fireman hammer and tongs. He swung a hard right to the body and a moment later scored with his left to the face. He gave Flynn no chance. Flynn rushed to close quarters, but found no shelter. Langford followed his advantage by sending his right and left to the body with great force. After two minutes of fighting Langford feinted with his right. Like a flash he brought his left flush to the fireman's jaw with an impact that was heard all over the house. Flynn dropped as if hit with a club, his face turned purple and he rolled on his back until the pain from the blow caused him to turn. The count of 10 was tolled off but Flynn was too far gone to even hear the count. He was insensible for five minutes. Langford was a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting.

Jimmy Walsh of Boston and Monte Attell of San Francisco, bantamweights, fought 15 rounds to a draw in a preliminary to the Langford-Flynn contest. Up to the eleventh round Attell appeared to hold a safe lead. He landed oftener and harder in a very spirited exhibition. The tables were turned, however, in the twelfth round. In this round Walsh battered his man with rights and lefts to the body and head and Attell was much disturbed when he went to his corner.

He came back vigorously, however, in the three final rounds, but Walsh clearly outfought him. At the close of the fifteenth round Referee King promptly called it a drawn battle. Attell's face was badly disfigured, while the Boston fighter presented practically an unbroken front.

FAST BASKETBALL GAME SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

SCHOOL OF MINES TEAM TO PLAY Y. M. C. A.

Visitors Went Through Seven Games Last Year Without Defeat—Big Crowd Expected.

Ready for the fray with the husky Miners tonight, the Y. M. C. A. basketball team finished training yesterday afternoon with light signal practice. The game promises to be the most closely contested match ever played in Colorado Springs.

The Miners are coming back with a long string of unbroken victories. Undefeated last season, they have lately added the scalps of Denver and Castle Rock to their belts. What they will do to Colorado Springs remains to be seen, but the local team is going to put up a hard fight before being taken into camp. Coach [illegible] and other loyal supporters who have followed the works of the Miners this season are confident that the Y. M. C. A. will be in the running, and it will not surprise them in the least if they scored a victory.

Mix 22 Expect Fast Game.

As a matter of fact, the Miners regard the Colorado Springs team as an enigma, and are making no predictions regarding the outcome of the big battle fought on the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. They have all the other teams sized up, but the strength of the locals has never been revealed to them.

At any rate, both teams will engage in a lively battle for supremacy, one that will be [illegible] witnessing. Arrangements have [illegible] made for a large number of spectators.

The Mines lineup will comprise an all-star aggregation, as may be seen from this review: Kirschman, guard, captain, came to the Mines from Central High school, Chicago. Willett, manager and forward, is playing his third year with the team. Van Lieu, center, played a phenomenal game last year, and is back in his old position this season. He was formerly with the Oshkosh Athletic club. Gilbert, forward, has been in the game two years, and has made a great record. Burns, guard, hails from Pennsylvania State college, where he did great work on the basketball and football teams.

The Y. M. C. A. team will probably consist of George St. John, forward and captain; H. Steninger, forward; H. Schmidt, center; R. Secrist, guard; R. Shanhizer, guard, and J. Steninger, guard. Bert Siddons, forward and guard of Colorado College, may also play. He has played with Colorado College and with the Highland Wheel club of Denver.

INSANITY AND SELF-DEFENSE

Attempt Will Be Made to Prove That Korean Slayer of Stevens Was Not in Right Mind.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Following the closing of the case for the state early today in the trial of In Wan Chang, the Korean who is charged with the murder of Durham White Stevens, the American adviser to the Korean emperor, the defense began taking testimony this afternoon with the expectation that it would have its case completed by tomorrow night. Insanity and self-defense will be the plea made by the defense. This was first indicated by the statement of Attorney Nathan Coghlan and later confirmed by the testimony of B. J. Lee, a Korean who was the constant companion of Chang for months prior to the shooting of Stevens. Lee declared it his opinion that Chang was unsound of mind and stated that he had repeatedly heard the defendant refer to Prince Ito of the Japanese cabinet, as a great devil, believing that the marquis headed what he thought was a conspiracy to oppress his countrymen.

Miss Kate Stevens, sister of the murdered man, has received a message of sympathy from Yi Hiung, the Korean emperor, the message being conveyed to her by an official of the state department. The writing is on a square yard of yellow silk of the particular kind reserved for the use of the royal family, and is sealed with the great private seal of the emperor.

WORK OF REORGANIZATION BEGUN BY NEWBERRY

Secretary of Navy Announces Appointment of New Board on Construction and Repairs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—In accord with his policy of the organization of navy department work, Secretary Newberry today announced the appointment of a new board on construction and repair, together with an enlargement of its duties.

The main objection sought is a more thorough co-ordination of the operations of the naval estimate and the completion of the work without friction. Different elements of navy personnel are included in the new board, so that it represents the navy better than ever before. Different duties are laid down in the naval regulations for the general board of the navy and that on construction and repair, but under the new idea there likely will be such co-operation regarding the detailed plans of battleships and other construction so as to obtain the best results.

The board will consist of the following officers:

Rear Admirals George A. Converse, retired; Newton E. Mason and William S. Cowles, retired, and Chief Constructor W. L. Capps, members of the existing board; Rear Admiral T. C. McLean and Captain L. S. K. Reeves, members of the board of inspection and survey; Captain Sidney A. Stanton of the general board, and Captain William W. Kimball. The board will have general supervision of the construction and equipment of all vessels instead of confining its work to new vessels, as now.

Secretary Newberry does not expect to fill the vacancy in the head of bureau of steam engineering, made vacant by the retirement of Rear Admiral Barton. It may be that this bureau will be merged into one of the other bureaus.

NUMEROUS DIFFICULTIES CONFRONT THE FARMER

Solution Will Be Demanded, Declares Bailey, Chairman of Country Commission.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—That there are problems and difficulties of a serious character affecting the farmers from one end of the country to the other, the solution of which they are going to demand, was the declaration of L. H. Bailey, chairman of the country commission, who, with four other members of that body, arrived here today to prepare their conclusions for presentation to Roosevelt.

The final meeting of the committee to consider the report was held today. The committee expects to have the report in the hands of the President the latter part of the month.

"Everywhere there are serious economic questions along the lines of distribution, marketing and the lack of effective co-operation among the farmers," said Professor Bailey. "Farmers are in need of social organization. We found, for example, where farming is very prosperous, the social conditions are not as very good. Great emphasis is placed on the deficiency in schools and of better highways."

CARNEGIE GIVES NO INFORMATION

figures, however, to such an extent that it is doubtful if the tariff framers are any more enlightened on the steel question tonight than they were before Mr. Carnegie was sworn in at 3:30 this morning.

Mr. Carnegie's principal contention was that the steel industry needs no more protection; that it has reached a point in its development where the American manufacturers can compete with the world under free trade conditions. While he claimed that the cost of labor and production of steel are less in this country than in the other countries in producing steel, Mr. Carnegie gave no figures to support his contention.

Gary's Word Sufficient.

He said Judge Gary told the committee that the United Steel corporation can get along without a tariff on its products, and that should be sufficient evidence for the committee to take off the duty on steel and iron.

Praising the genius of Charles M. Schwab, Mr. Carnegie suggested that Congress should extend a vote of thanks of Mr. Schwab for his work in improving the methods of steel making in this country.

"I never met his equal," said Mr. Carnegie, in speaking of Mr. Schwab, "and when we were partners we were a great team."

"That is very apparent," remarked Chairman Payne.

Speaking of the testimony of Judge Gary before the committee, Mr. Carnegie said:

Interested Parties Unreliable.

"You should not place any real value on the testimony of interested parties. Judge Gary said that the United States Steel corporation could stand for reduction in the tariff on steel, but that the smaller steel manufacturers could not survive with lowered duties. That is like one of Aesop's fables. Judge Gary is like the monkey who desired the chestnuts but wanted the cat to pull them out of the fire."

The crowded room frequently rang with peals of laughter at the quips of Mr. Carnegie, who seemed to be in splendid shape for the questions asked by Representative Dalzell and Payne. At one point Mr. Payne leaned over and whispered to Mr. Dalzell who sat at his side.

"I wish the chairman would tell me what he said to Mr. Dalzell; I think I ought to know," Mr. Carnegie protested.

There was a roar of laughter throughout the room, but Mr. Payne made no reply.

Leaning over with his hand to his ear and his head cocked to one side, in imitation of the attitude assumed by Mr. Payne, in whispering to Mr. Dalzell, Mr. Carnegie said: "I should say that your words were, 'The fig is up.'"

Mr. Carnegie was not willing to deal in figures.

"The more figures you get, the more you will be befogged. I do not judge by figures given by interested parties," he said at another point in his testimony. "I judge by results."

The former steel magnate said that Judge Gary had issued an annual statement showing that the United States Steel corporation had made a profit of $168,000,000 which he said equalled a profit of $15.50 a ton on all steel produced.

Avoided Direct Replies.

Mr. Carnegie avoided direct replies to questions as to whether the cost of producing steel at the present time as given by Judge Gary and Mr. Schwab was correct. Mr. Schwab's estimate of the present cost is based on entirely different ideals than his estimate of the cost in 1889, was all that Mr. Carnegie would say.

Replying to a question from Mr. Cockran, Mr. Carnegie declared that the removal of the duty on steel would not necessarily affect the prices because Europe could not successfully compete with the American product. He also said that if the figures given by former witnesses were absolutely correct, steel stock would be selling below par.

"His solicitude for his weaker brethren is sublime," said Mr. Carnegie, referring to Judge Gary's contention that the smaller steel manufacturers could not stand for the abolition of the duty on steel.

Mr. Carnegie said that the manufacturers of Wales could not make a ton of tin plate a shade cheaper than it could be made here and that the cost of manufacturing steel is cheaper in Great Britain than here. He said the committee should send experts familiar with the steel industry, to the large mills of Europe to study the question of comparative cost of labor.

"It is a condition and not a theory that concerns the committee at this time," said Representative Longworth, in reply.

"It is understood that the President-elect will call a special session of Congress for the purpose of enacting a tariff bill, and we must prepare a bill for them to pass on. We have no time to send experts to Europe. What I want to know is what authority, besides the testimony given by you and Judge Gary, who I don't think went as far as you do, have for taking off the tariff on steel?"

Mr. Carnegie pointed out that there is practically no foreign-made steel imported in this country.

Mr. Carnegie had planned to leave for New York on an afternoon train, but when Mr. Payne asked him if he desired to continue his testimony today or appear again tomorrow, he arranged to stay in Washington tonight.

Considers It a Duty.

"I consider it my duty as a citizen to come here, or a week, if necessary," said Mr. Carnegie.

Mr. Carnegie concluded his testimony shortly before 4 o'clock and was about to leave when Alfred O. Crozier of Wilmington, Del., asked permission to be heard. He also asked Mr. Carnegie to remain and hear his remarks, explaining that they would be in the nature of a criticism on the former steel king's views on the tariff. Mr. Carnegie took a seat, with the evident purpose of listening to Mr. Crozier, but the latter had not proceeded far when Mr. Carnegie arose and said that he had been before the committee all day and that it was pretty tiresome. He begged to be excused, but said that he would like to get a copy of Mr. Crozier's remarks after they are printed.

"I shall read it with pleasure," he said, "and if the gentleman criticises me, I shall say 'what a pity that man does not know better,' and if he is with me, I shall probably say, 'what a wise young man he is.'"

With a few parting words of regret because he could not stay, Mr. Carnegie took his departure.

Mr. Crozier addressed his remarks principally to the magazine article recently published over Mr. Carnegie's name which, he said, dealt a severe blow to the entire protective system. He said that Mr. Carnegie had kindled wide doubt as to the wisdom, necessity and value of protection. Mr. Crozier claimed that Mr. Carnegie's proposition to take the duty off steel would have the effect of leaving the United States Steel corporation forever in undisputed possession of the American field.

Gary Defends His Testimony.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—E. H. Gary, president of the United States Steel corporation, after reading the testimony of Andrew Carnegie before the ways and means committee, said that while his figures had been contradicted by Mr. Carnegie they were nevertheless accurately computed as to the cost of steel production.

"The figures that I gave the committee with reference to the production of steel are absolutely accurate," said Gary.

"It is too serious a matter to give information on so important a topic that may be wrong or misleading. When told the committee what it cost us to produce steel I told them what I knew to be the truth and the truth based upon careful investigation as well as complete knowledge and experience in connection with the steel business.

"I realize the importance of the hearing. I certainly did not testify falsely. I had a full comprehension of what was being sought by Congress. I gave the information I did according as I knew and believed it to be true.

"I think highly of Mr. Carnegie. He is a fine man and able. I really don't think he meant what he said in his reference to me. Just his way of saying something in a certain mood. I will not enter into any discussion of what he said. I can only repeat that my figures are accurate. I shall say nothing more than this."

the vice president and the element composing it are willing and anxious to resume diplomatic negotiations with the United States, the elimination from the new cabinet of those who were closely affiliated with Castro rule is gratifying to the officials here, who hope that under the new order some progress may be made toward adjudicating the claims of the United States against Venezuela, which have been pending for so long a time.

If Venezuela, under the new dispensation, shows a disposition to resume diplomatic relations with the United States the state department would tender its aid in that direction without hesitation. It prefers to be on friendly terms with our South American neighbors.

For these reasons, the appointment of a new cabinet may have an important bearing on the relations between the two governments.

TAFT CONFERS WITH HAMMOND

President-Elect Calls Chairman of Native League of Republican Club to Augusta for Talk

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 21.—President-elect Taft conferred today with John Hays Hammond, president of the National League of Republican clubs, and received suggestions which will be given serious consideration respecting new fields of future usefulness for that organization. Mr. Hammond arrived here on the invitation of Mr. Taft, who said there were many things he wanted to talk over with the eminent mining engineer, including political conditions and appointments. Mr. Hammond was emphatic in saying that he was not a candidate for either the cabinet, the diplomatic corps or any other position. If he had any ambition whatever, he said, it would be to head a department of public works, if such a department should be established. In the organization of such he believes his engineering experience would be valuable in organizing a branch of service having for its purpose the conservation of the natural resources and their administration.

Mr. Taft said tonight he had invited Senator Knox to come to Augusta within the next two or three weeks if he could, at which time a cabinet conference would be held. Mr. Taft said he believed he was beginning to see where so many cabinet rumors came from. The publishing of a name with the information that its possessor was being "seriously considered" for the cabinet, he found, has followed the suggestion of that name to him by someone interested in the person. He added that he still believed it would take more than the suggestion of a name and its publication to build the cabinet.

The Taft family today moved into the Tarrant cottage, which is to be their home during the remainder of their stay here. At dinner tonight they were the guests of the Country Club.

Mr. Taft is vexed at his golf score. He refuses to tell what it is, but lays the blame to the sand greens.

ALASKA'S WINTER BEGINS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—To give prompt notice to Alaskans of the beginning of their long and cold winter, the naval observatory sent out a special series of telegraphic time signals, beginning at 12:30 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning and ending at 12:33:34, the exact instant when the sun starts north in declination. The flashing of the signals was by request of the chief signal officer of the army, with the voluntary co-operation of the Western Union and Postal telegraph companies. The first signal was started on its long transcontinental journey at 12:33 a. m. Tuesday, was due at Sitka at 8:33 p. m. the previous day, owing to difference of longitude, at 7:33:34 p. m. at Valdez, and 6:33:34 at Nome.

The entire series of signals probably will be sent over every telegraphic wire in Alaska, as well as by wireless to the most remote posts and camps.

CHICAGO HAS A RIVAL IN GARY

to go less than two stories high, and have a basement.

Novel Conveniences.

Water, gas and electric light systems have been in operation a year; there is a complete telephone system and a street railway, besides the interurban line connecting with Chicago and South Bend. In fact, Gary boasts in many respects the air of a settled, long-lived-in city, without the attendant disadvantages of old houses, abandoned rookeries and unsanitary conditions. It has not, however, the look of the city that has started by accident or with a problematic future, for it started with its future guaranteed.

Within two years many of the sand dunes have been levelled, the shallows are disappearing, and grass and trees are reclaiming the lands that have not already been pre-empted for building purposes.

Last year 2,000 trees were set out, and this year 3,000 more. Two parks have been laid out and are being improved, and next summer a theater will be built, modeled after the Colonial of Chicago. A stone school house was finished in September, and the school population so far overfilled it that another, to cost several hundred thousand dollars has already been begun. It is all very much like a story of Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp. The giant brains of a big corporation said: "Here we build a city. Here will be the streets, there the houses, there the mills, there the depot, there the public buildings." And apparently from nowhere sprang engineers, architects, workmen and machinery, and each thing appeared as the corporation said it should, and all is coming about with little appearance of haste.

Union Depot Planned.

There must be a union depot, declared the builders. And instead of waiting until the whole thing would be done at once, with consequent detriment to traffic and inconvenience to the traveler, they had the railway tracks entering the city elevated to the proper height before the city was born, and put in the concrete foundation and archways, the long corridors and approaches that will soon be crowned by a $800,000 structure. Just now the passenger leaving Gary goes into the concrete understructure, passes up a wide stairway and finds himself on a great wind-swept platform that will next year form a part of the concourse of the new station. He has his baggage checked in a box car that is acting as understudy for the future well appointed baggage room, and all the while he feels a conscious pride in the spirit of preparation that has made the city build all things for permanence, ready for additional structure, so that nothing need be torn down. The majority of the railroads will run into the Union station, though three below the city will not. However, the Gary and Western Union Line Belt will connect practically all the roads.

Improvements on the lake for shipping facilities have resulted in the building of a slip, where on last July the first ore vessel was unloaded, and where since hundreds of vessels with their burdens have put in. Further improvements will make the whole lake front a series of gigantic docks for seagoing vessels, and the Calumet river will be deepened and cut through and make into a ship canal that will offer further shipping facilities. The trackage in the railroad yards about Gary already approximates 300 miles or more, and the city, like the work of the big corporation for whose use it was created, sees no stopping place in its expansion. Judge E. H. Gary, for whom the future rival of Chicago was named, sees in the development of the steel industry an assured future for Gary that will bring a bigger population each year, until within a decade it will rival St. Louis in size and power.

Thousands of Workmen.

There are already 6,000 workmen on the grounds, the majority in the steel plants, the others on construction work. This is one-tenth the number that the steel company expects to have in its works alone in 10 years. The housing of these workmen will proceed along improved lines. Just now they are living wherever they can find a place, making shift at anything until their houses can be ready for them. Some are in tents and shacks, that have apparently crept close in the lee of the sand dunes to escape the biting winds from the lake. Others fare better in more comfortable houses. The law requiring two-story and basement structures applies to the mill hands as well. To meet their needs model apartment houses are built, two-story affairs, of four rooms each, two above and two below. Fifty or more have been completed and others are being started as rapidly as men and machinery can do it. Speculators have no chance here where land deals are concerned, for he who buys land must agree to build in 18 months, and the title passes to him only when he builds. It is permanent residents and business folks that Gary wants, and it will have them, and there is no paternalism about the matter, either.

Room for Expansion.

It is expected that the mills of the United States Steel corporation will be excelled in this only by the Krupps, and this may surpass even these, judging by the great bounds that steel has made in the past 10 years. With Gary as a manufactory site there will be room for expansion, and, what is of equal importance, room for steel using plants to locate there and create a quicker market. The American Car Foundry company has established itself next to the steel mills, and in its manufacture of steel railway cars will employ 2,000 men. The American Bridge and Iron Work has found a suitable site there, and other subsidiary manufactories such as the American Steel and Wire company and the American Tin Plate company are coming. The superior facilities afforded by nearness to the steel plants and the lake, railways and canal for shipping will attract numerous other plants which Gary will welcome, and it is believed that Chicago will lose a goodly number of growing factories that have found no room for expansion in their present location. Especially those using the output of the United States Steel Corporation's plants are expected.

True to its cosmopolitan spirit, Gary has drawn its population from a widely scattered area of this country. And true to its determination to build a stable and permanent institution, it has chosen the men who can best do that work. On Broadway alone there are business buildings erected and occupied by men from 13 different states, and each has brought with him an abiding faith and pride in the new city, as has each of the other members of the several thousand population. The good government, the civic pride, the excellent laws enacted for the municipality all prove the standard of its citizenry.

Future of Gary.

Chicago, first a trading center "when wilderness was king," had adverse physical conditions to overcome in order to establish itself and in order to reach its pre-eminent place in the western world. Chicago was the child of the pioneer, that must rise step by step by the conquest of adverse conditions. If its rise has been so great over so many difficulties, what may one not expect of Gary that has already done so much in two years' time?

For Gary is no pioneer's child. It is the child of wealth and prosperity, born into a world where money and brains had already planned out every step of its career for a century ahead, and where every modern invention and idea and opportunity was laid as a gift in its hand by its fond parent, the United States Steel corporation. It will not be a pampered, coddled darling, by any means, for its rich parents are of the highest type of modern Americanism, demanding that the child of the rich of today be given every preparation for making its way in the world and then set to work to fulfill its destiny. Such a child is the sturdy city of Gary, and a half century, or less, will bring proof as to whether or not Chicago need have fears over its existence.

RITTENHOUSE GETS PLUM IN INSURANCE WORLD

rado and New York from writing new business in those states.

Mr. Rittenhouse, whose home is in Colorado Springs, is well known in this city and Denver, as well as throughout the state, and his success will be a source of gratification to his friends. The position is one of the most important in the city of Denver in insurance organizations of the United States. The Equitable society has assets of over $12,000,000 and its annual income is now in excess of $3,000,000.

Remarkable Rise.

Mr. Rittenhouse, who came originally from New York city to Colorado Springs about 20 years ago, started life as a telegraph operator, and for some years was superintendent of the telegraph department for the Colorado Midland railway in this city. He spent about a year in Korea under Colbran and Bostwick, the contractors who constructed the Colorado Midland, assisting in the construction of an electric railway line at Seoul, and later in the construction of a steam line from Seoul to Chemulpo, the seaport of Seoul, 25 miles distant. From Korea he returned to Colorado Springs and for several years was engaged in the mining brokerage business during the boom days of the Cripple Creek excitement.

Editor of Telegraph.

In 1902 Mr. Rittenhouse left the brokerage business to become assistant editor and afterwards editor of the Colorado Springs Evening Telegraph, and in August, 1904, resigned the editorship to conduct the campaign press bureau for the Republican party in the second Peabody campaign. After the election Governor Peabody appointed Mr. Rittenhouse state deputy commissioner of insurance, an office then conducted under the state auditor. Two years later the state legislature enacted the state insurance law now in force, which was framed entirely by Mr. Rittenhouse and has since been adopted as a model by several other states in the union. Under this law the office of the insurance commissioner was separated from that of the state auditor and Mr. Rittenhouse was appointed the first state superintendent of insurance by Governor Buchtel. He took this office in January, 1907, and his work since that time has attracted the attention of insurance men and state officials all over the United States.

Protected Policy Holders.

In the last two years Mr. Rittenhouse has been instrumental in protecting policy holders in this state from the operations of wildcat concerns and his administration of the office has received the approval not only of the reliable insurance organizations, but of the people of the state at large. By constant endeavor he has mastered every detail of the insurance business and is regarded as one of the greatest experts on insurance law and the practical operation of insurance companies in the United States. On several occasions he has made addresses before conventions of insurance men and largely through his efforts Colorado has become a model for other states of the Union in the matter of insurance regulation.

MILLIONAIRE AND YOUNG WIFE HELP FIGHT BIG FIRE

Joe Leiter, Chicago, With Helpmeet, Attacks Flames Which Threaten Coal Supply of Ziegler Mine.

ZEIGLER, Ill., Dec. 21.—With a stubborn fire slowly fighting back hundreds of men who have been ceaselessly at work for days, seeking to save the coal supply of the local Zeigler mine, Joe Leiter, Chicago millionaire, and his beautiful young wife have joined forces with the workmen and are personally combating the flames. Early today Leiter and his wife, formerly Miss Juliet Williams, of Washington, D. C., were at the scene of the conflict. Leiter was leading the workmen with an inspiring energy, while on the fighting line, tired, but determined, was his beautiful young wife, serving the almost exhausted men with coffee and sandwiches and encouraging them by her presence.

Leiter arrived at Zeigler on a special train, hastily arranged for. Through his presence and that of his wife, hope remains for saving the mine. The fire started in the coal beds several days ago. Gradually the flames have eaten their way forward, and what was believed to be a matter of small consequence, now threatens the destruction of an indefinite amount of wealth-producing mineral and the loss of employment to hundreds.

Mrs. Leiter has had bandages, medicines, salves, etc., brought from the commissary to the mouth of the shaft, and there she has erected a temporary hospital tent. Cots and warm bedding were also brought into service, and when a fire fighter, singed by the heat, overcome by the smoke, or weakened by exhaustion, was brought out of the shaft, he received quick and effective treatment. In many cases this was administered by Mrs. Leiter herself.

The Zeigler mines are among the most valuable of the Leiter properties. Their supply is practically limitless, while great expense has been incurred in erecting homes for the miners and the construction of buildings and the purchase of implements. Since its acquirement, however, the Zeigler property has not been a prosperous one for Mr. Leiter. Soon after its purchase he had troubles with organized labor, which proved very expensive. These troubles had barly been smoothed over before the disastrous fire came.

It is believed that if the flames are checked at the present status, the mine cannot be worked for months, and that heavy financial loss has already resulted.

Ask Your Neighbors

So many people scattered all over the American Continent have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines that there's scarcely a hamlet where some of these grateful people are not to be easily found ever ready to say a good word for the medicines which cured them and which very likely may cure you, if similarly afflicted. Look them up. They are walking advertisements for Dr. Pierce's medicines ever ready to pass the good news along that these medicines cure when many others fail. Little advertised NOW, because their record of 40 years of cures makes great displays of their merits unnecessary. The great American people, pretty generally know of their unequaled record.

COMMITTEE COMING TODAY

Legislators Will Inspect Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind.

Upon the decision of the legislative committee now inspecting the state institution, and which is due in this city today, will depend the number and extent of improvements to be made at the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind in this city during the coming year. The total appropriation asked for by Superintendent W. K. Argo is $93,000. He will endeavor to persuade the committee to recommend this amount.

"The latest information I had upon the subject was that which came last Saturday," said Mr. Argo last night. "I was informed then that the gentlemen would visit the school Tuesday forenoon. I presume that they will spend the day in Colorado Springs. We are making no special preparations for the visit, but falling as it does upon a weekday and moreover when school will be in session, I am hoping that a thorough inspection will be made, not only as to needed equipment, but to the work that is being accomplished.

"The improvements which I hope will be allowed comprise many matters. The largest single item is, as I said last week, the remodeling of the old industrial building. I hope to have it adapted for use as a dormitory for the younger children. This will necessitate the expenditure of about $5,000. The school also is in great need of a warehouse where broomcorn and other materials may be stored."

No institution was visited yesterday, the committee remaining in Denver. They probably will make the trip to Colorado Springs in a special car which has been placed at their disposal during the time they will be engaged in making their round of visits throughout the state.

PUBLIC COMFORT STATION FIGHT ON

UNEXPECTED CLAIMS MADE BY COMPLAINANTS.

City Has No Right to Use Street for Such Purposes and That Contract Is Illegal.

Two unexpected claims—first, that this city has no rights to its streets and avenues except as public thoroughfares, and second, that no contract can legally be let, except for some purpose mentioned and provided for in the annual appropriations—were sprung by attorneys for the complainants in the injunction suit against the city of Colorado Springs, et al., which was on trial before Judge J. W. Shearer in the district court yesterday. Evidence was introduced and counsel for the complainants began its argument before court adjourned yesterday afternoon. The hearing will be resumed today.

This is the case wherein the Colorado Springs Masonic Building association and other owners of property on both sides of Nevada avenue, between Pikes Peak avenue and Kiowa street, seek to restrain the city and the contractors in charge of the work from building the public comfort station in front of the Masonic temple. Judge Shearer granted a temporary restraining order last week and the present hearing is on the merits of the case. It will result either in a dissolution of the temporary writ or a decision making it permanent.

The Contentions.

The complaint asking for a temporary writ contended that the public comfort station, if completed would not only obstruct the public highway, but would be obnoxious and injure the health of neighboring residents. The defendants put witnesses on the stand yesterday in an attempt to show that the site is convenient and that the proposed building will neither interfere with the health of nearby residents nor seriously obstruct traffic.

In the argument of the complainants' counsel, authorities were cited tending to show that a city has no right to use a street except as a public thoroughfare, and that if a single taxpayer in the entire city objects this right could not be violated.

Furthermore, the attorneys pointed out that the Colorado statutes provide that contracts shall be let by cities in this state, only when an appropriation is made for that purpose in the annual appropriation ordinance, which ordinance shall be passed by the City Council during the last quarter of the year. Since the City Council omitted all mention of the public comfort station in its recent appropriation ordinance, intending to take care of the cost by unexpended appropriations in various departments, the complainants are using this point in their arguments.

Cornforth Takes Hand.

Former Senator Arthur Cornforth has been added to the counsel for the plaintiffs, including Kinney and Kinsley and C. H. Dudley. City Attorney W. H. Price is looking after the interests of the city and codefendants.

Despite the objection of Attorney Price, Judge Shearer yesterday granted a motion of the complainants to insert an interlineation into their complaint, showing that they are resident taxpayers of this city. Price was given leave to file an answer to any additional points covered in the amended complaint.

PERSINGER GETS GOOD PLACE

Was Not Engaged by Imperial School of Music and Fine Arts at Winnipeg, Canada.

Louis H. Persinger of Colorado Springs, who has won fame in Europe by his mastery of the violin, has lately resigned his position of concert master in one of the leading orchestras of Berlin. He has been engaged by the Imperial School of Music and Fine Arts at Winnepeg, Manitoba, Canada, for a short tour through Canada, after which he is to become professor of music in the academy at a salary of $5,000 a year. Mr. Persinger is 21 years old, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Persinger of this city.

A representative and director of the Imperial School of Music and Fine Arts, who was in Berlin for musical talent, immediately engaged Mr. Persinger after hearing him play.

Mrs. Persinger, who joined her son on his summer tour through France and Germany, will visit in Brussels after leaving Berlin and sail for New York early in January.

AFTER TOP OF PIKES PEAK

Viegman and Wolff Will Try to Get Title to Site of Famous Mountain.

As a result of the assignment of all right and title to a claim of 160 acres crowning Pikes Peak, made by Dr. A. G. Lewis to Kinsman and Wolff of Colorado City, the litigation which Dr. Lewis instituted in the early '90s to secure his homestead right, will be reopened by the new owners, who have engaged Attorney L. W. Cunningham to represent them in the courts.

The history of the claim dates back to February 4, 1889, when Dr. Lewis filed on the land as a homestead, shortly after a proclamation by President Harrison had thrown open the land for entry, it having formerly been a military reserve. Although it is said Dr. Lewis actually lived on the land during the required three years and fulfilled all requirements of the homestead law, he was refused a title by the government. The new owners will seek to establish their right before the public land department at Washington.

NEW MAJESTIC SHOW MAKES A BIG HIT

THREE CROWDED HOUSES IS FIRST DAY'S RECORD.

Every Patron Delighted With Quality of Entertainment Provided by Spencer Webber.

Enthusiastic appreciation marked the initial offering of the New Majestic theater in this city yesterday afternoon and last night. With every act a stellar production, the big bill was received with acclaim by audiences that filled the theater to overflowing. In all that large assemblage not a shadow of a doubt prevailed that Manager DeWitt C. Webber had made good his promises to bring metropolitan vaudeville to Colorado Springs.

Recognizing the fact that through the presentations of Manager Webber, Colorado Springs is placed in an entirely new and vastly more important position on the amusement map, citizens turned out in force to witness the opening productions. And they were not disappointed, for each and every act presented was worthy of their attention.

Augurs Well for Future.

It is safe to predict that the New Majestic theater will open a new era in the history of vaudeville entertainment in Colorado Springs. This was evidenced by the splendid presentation of yesterday, which will continue throughout the week. The bill is identically the same as that presented with great success in the Majestic theater in Denver last week. The theater-going public of Colorado Springs is assured the very best in vaudeville by the Considine-Sullivan circuit, and the splendid bill this week is but an introductory of perhaps even stronger attractions to come.

Startling sensationalism is exemplified in the strong act of the Viviani, world's greatest sharpshooters. The act must be seen to be appreciated. From every conceivable position, seemingly impossible shots are accomplished with ease and skill. The rifle-shot accompaniment to a vocal solo made a big hit, as did also the mirror-sight shots of the team. The act in itself is well worth the price of admission.

Stunts All Good.

The Musical Gardners scored heavily in a presentation of superior excellence. Melody, technique and masterly interpretation characterized the work of the team. They play the old-fashioned airs that awaken memories and stir the emotions of those of us who are, perhaps, unable to appreciate artistic intricacy. But that the classic may not be overlooked, the team delves into the heavy selections as a foil to the lighter productions.

Ollie Knight is really funny, and that is saying a great deal for the stage comedian of today. He really entertains his audience. Witticisms of recent vintage, mimicry of a new brand, and dancing that is really a revelation of human dexterity make his act stand out in a class by itself.

Animal acts have palled upon the public lately, but it is refreshing, to say the least, to witness the presentation of Loughlin's canine troupe. They depart from the old-time hop-and-skip act, and afford the public real entertainment. They perform so many wonderful feats, they are so keen and full of intelligence, that one almost forgets for the moment that they are not really human.

Harking back to the golden age of romance, when the world was young, Amando Barackmen sings of the love of the days when we were all 16. "When I Marry You" is a beautiful sentimental ballad, and the hit touch was received in the enthusiasm with which it was received.

The moving pictures are amusing and instructive, depicting human life in its various phases. Temptation overcome and virtue triumphant are portrayed as ethical lessons that cannot fail to be of good to all to whom they are presented.

TO ENLARGE SUGAR PLANT

United States Sugar and Land Company Issues Bonds in Amount of $1,500,000.

Bonds to the extent of $1,500,000 have been issued by the United States Sugar and Land company of this city for the purpose of extending the plant at Garden City, Kan. The entire issue has been underwritten by Hayden, Stone and company, one of the largest financial firms of Boston, which is acquiring a large share of stock in the company, and will also give the stockholder in the sugar and land company an opportunity to invest in the bonds. The new issue is the only outstanding indebtedness of the local company. The deal with the underwriting firm was negotiated by C. S. MacNeill, who, with Spencer Penrose, is the chief stockholder in the sugar and land company.

The interest taken by Hayden, Stone and company in the sugar beet proposition is the result of a visit made to this city by Charles Hayden, one of the members of the firm, last summer. Mr. Hayden paid a visit to the plant at Garden City in company with Mr. MacNeill, and was so impressed with the future possibilities of the business that he expressed a desire for some of the company's stock. Mr. Hayden also visited the works of the Utah Copper company, in which he is a director and large stockholder, in the course of his visit to Colorado.

The capacity of the United States Sugar and Land company's plant at Garden City will be increased from 1,000 to 1,400 tons a day and about 100 new houses for employes of the company will be erected. According to Mr. MacNeill, the balance of the new issue will be used as working capital and for the general improvement of the company's holdings.

CORNERSTONE LAYING JAN. 7

This Date Will Probably Be Selected by Protestant Hospital Building Association.

Ceremonies for the laying of the cornerstone of the new Protestant hospital will be arranged at a meeting of the building committee today. To comply with the convenience of Governor H. A. Buchtel, who is to deliver the principal address, the stone will probably be laid on Thursday, January 7. The governor has accepted an invitation to be present as the principal speaker on that date. The ceremonies will be under the direction of Dr. C. B. Wilcox, pastor of the First M. E. church, who will arrange the religious observances and the musical program.

The cornerstone will be a beautifully polished square of granite from the quarries in South Platte canon. It will bear the motto of the Woman's Home Missionary society, "For the Love of Christ and in His Name." The date of erection will also be engraved in the stone.

In the receptacle of the cornerstone will be placed a coin bearing date of the year in which the building was erected, manuscripts containing a list of names of subscribers to the structure, the annual report and year book of the Woman's Home Missionary society, copies of the daily newspapers of Colorado Springs, a copy of Woman's Work and a copy of the Western Christian Advocate.

The building committee, which is in charge of arrangements, consists of E. D. Simmons, chairman, the Rev. E. H. Liles, secretary; A. G. Sharp, treasurer; William Lennox, E. W. Giddings, John Dietrich and E. W. Kent.

Bright lights are gleaming in many Jewish homes of Colorado Springs this week in celebration of Chanukah, the "Feast of Lights." The festival began at sundown Saturday and will continue eight days.

ERMINE AND BROADTAIL COMBINED.

For very dressy wear the rich black broadtail coat may have a collar and revers of white ermine and a big muff to match. Ermine is used this season only for dressy wear, and no fur conveys such a suggestion of luxury and elegance as the royal ermine. The muff matching this sharing [illegible] is a very modish affair, the black ermine tails showing only in a border effect which edges the pure white muff.

WANTS JUVENILE COURTS

A recommendation that the state legislature provide a law for the establishment of an independent juvenile court in all cities of the first class not already provided with one was passed at the regular meeting of the North End W. C. T. U. yesterday. After citing the need for such a court in all large cities, the resolution asks the state legislators to assist in the establishment of courts in all cities of the first class that will in some measure be a duplicate of Judge Lindsey's juvenile court in Denver. Copies of the recommendation will be forwarded to Governor-elect Shafroth and to each member of the next legislature.

In the course of the fight for the management of the Gold Sovereign Mining and Tunnel company against O. H. Hinds, a circular letter to stockholders has been issued by F. R. Mr. Hinds is the president of the board of directors and Mr. Berbower states that if elected to that position with a board favorable to him (Berbower) he will "cut out all salaries until such time as the company is ready to rebuild the surface buildings, which were burned during the present year.

CUTS OFF HUSBAND WITH $5

Milwaukee Dispatch to the New York Tribune.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Stein, the eccentric woman who for 10 years forced her husband to live in the barn, never admitting him to the house in that time, is said to have willed her entire fortune of about $20,000 to her son, Dr. Schnittker, now serving a term in state prison, and to have cut off her husband with $5.

PHILLIPS' DEATH ACCIDENTAL

By Eye Witness Jury Finds Dyson Relieved—Both Well Known in Woodland Park.

That L. B. Phillips came to his death by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of Mrs. Myrtle Dyson, nee Cress, was the verdict of the coroner's jury called by Coroner Thompson of Cripple Creek yesterday to hear evidence in the shooting at the Dyson ranch, 12 miles west of Woodland Park, Saturday night which resulted in Phillips' death. The young woman, who was taken to Cripple Creek Sunday by Deputy Sheriff John Carr, was released last night and the body of Phillips was taken to Cripple Creek for interment.

Both Phillips and Mrs. Dyson, formerly Myrtle Cress, are well known in this city where they spent the early years of their life. In 1904 Phillips was sentenced to the state reformatory by former Judge J. A. Orr for larceny and in August, 1907, the Cress girl was sentenced to the state industrial school for girls by Judge Kerr, for incorrigibility. She was married when she was 13 years old and was afterwards arrested for living as a common law wife with a number of men employed at the lime kilns north of this city. Recently, she has been living at the ranch of her father, H. D. Dyson, 12 miles west of Woodland Park.

DISCUSSES DIVORCE QUESTION

The Rev. E. H. Liles Gives Interesting Talk at Meeting of Ministerial Association.

Divorce, one of the most insidious and most prevalent of all modern evils, is placed under the ban of the church because it disrupts the most sacred of all human institutions—the home. Spiritual attraction, strongly modified by sexual selection, is the foundation of the family, the primary influence in the propagation of the species, according to the letter of an address delivered before the Ministerial association yesterday morning by the Rev. E. H. Liles, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. The Rev. Mr. Liles traced the history of the church in its relation to the home from the time of Christ.

The social evil, with its reflections of desertion and abuse and neglect, is designated by Mr. Liles as a sufficient cause for a severance of the matrimonial bonds. However, the church, he declares, admits of this separation only in a limited degree. By this he means that the cause must justify the end.

To substantiate his doctrine, Mr. Liles reviewed the history of the Jews, the Greeks and the Romans in relation to marriage, showing that once a man and a woman enter these sacred bonds, nothing but the most serious causes should admit of their separation.

CROWDS ATTEND SALE AT MAY CO.

Attracted by the big price reductions on good reliable clothing and furnishings, holiday buyers are crowding the May company these days during their big semiannual "shove-em-out sale."

The one which opened last week is the fifth held by this company, and is proving very popular on account of being held just before Christmas, when prices generally go up instead of down. But the May company is giving the regular reductions they have given heretofore, when they have held their sale a month later. The Christmas shopper will find a full and well assorted line of useful articles of wearing apparel for men, women and boys, which will make excellent gifts.

MAY RAISE TREATMENT RATE

Golden Cycle Manager Thinks Low-Grade Ore Is Being Handled Too Cheaply.

Preparations for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Golden Cycle mining company, to be held on January 12, are being made by General Manager H. McGarry, who will make a report on the operations for the last 11 months.

One of the questions of importance to come before the meeting is that of increasing the treatment charges on the low grades of ore that running one ounce in gold and under. Mr. McGarry stated last night that a recommendation to this effect was being considered, as the company's mill at Colorado City is receiving all the ore it can handle outside of the low grades on which the treatment charges have been extremely small. The probability is that the recommendation will be made and accepted at the annual meeting, and that no further contracts at the present prevailing rates will be accepted on low grades of ore.

For the first 19 days in this month the Golden Cycle mill treated 1,000 tons daily, or about 100 tons daily over its estimated capacity.

SMITH GIVES A REPORT

Outlines Work of Church Federation at Meeting Last Night.

Before an assemblage of ministers and laymen at the close of the meeting of the Ministerial association at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday morning, H. Alexander Smith, delegate to the recent meeting of the Church federation at Philadelphia, presented an informal report to the conference. Without entering into detail, he outlined the broad policy of the federation with its activities in the field of religion, education and labor. The proposition will be more fully discussed at a mass meeting to be held at the M. E. church, South, on December 30.

Further action, independent of the mass meeting, was taken by the appointment of a committee to send letters to the churches of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou, asking that each appoint a delegate to act with the pastor at a meeting for investigation to be announced by the committee. The committee consists of Dr. C. B. Wilcox, Dr. Howard Agnew Johnson and Mr. Smith.

SHALL CITY PAY THE BILL?

Or Must Owners of Property Stand Expense of Special Watchman. Council Fails to Decide.

The question of whether the city shall pay for the watching of property damaged by fire until an insurance adjustment is made or the property owner be compelled to bear the expense, agitated the city council so greatly at last night's regular meeting that an adjournment was taken in the midst of the discussion. The controversy grew out of a demand on the part of Michael Riley for pay for his services as special watchman during a period of 15 days upon the site of the recent fire in the business district.

Alderman Sims held that it was the duty of the property owners to pay the watchman who protected their exposed property, in order that the insurance might be collected. He maintained that if the bill of Mr. Riley be paid the city should be reimbursed.

On the other hand, Chief of Police Wolfe declared that it was the duty of the police force to see that property damaged by fire should be protected from intruders. He said that the regular patrolmen had been unable to do this duty and at the same time attend to their beats, and that he had been compelled to hire an extra man.

The opinion of the council was divided, and a heated discussion began, when two of the councilmen asked to be excused, and an adjournment was taken.

Little Other Business.

The session was a short one, and little other business was transacted. The saloon license of Julius & Thompson was annulled and a new license granted to H. C. Thompson, one of the partners, who is now sole owner of the establishment. A new bond was accepted.

The subject was broached as to what price should be set upon plots of ground in the new addition to the cemetery desired by various clubs and orders. The new lots will be sold at $30 each. Most of the councilmen were in favor of selling a set of four in which case the sales between the lots might be used also for graves for $60. On the other hand, some were inclined to think this price too high. The matter was laid upon the table until the next regular meeting.

SPECIAL SERVICES CLOSE

The Rev. Allen Wilson Preaches Last Sermon of Series.

Moving pictures were used by Evangelist Allen Wilson in conjunction with an address on the subject, "Death, Burial, Resurrection and Ascension of Jesus Christ," at the First Christian church last night. The pictures, which were in colors and to the number of 125, illustrated Rev. Wilson's talk.

This was the last meeting of a three weeks' engagement of nightly evangelistic services, during which time 94 conversions have been made. The Rev. Mr. Wilson will leave today for Indianapolis, Ind., where he will pay a visit at his old home, returning to Colorado in time to conduct a series of meetings in Denver, beginning January 1.

"JOKE" ON PERRY NEW YEARS DAY

NO COIN AVAILABLE FOR 24 HOURS.

Authorizes Rebate on Colo City water Bills—Much Routine Business.

Trade Dollars will be "broke" on January 1, 1909. That is to say, not one of city money will be available New Years day.

All moneys apportioned to the various departments in the 1907 appropriation ordinance for the year 1908 can be used only up to and including December 31, and all expenditures on and after January 1 must be under the new appropriation ordinance. This ordinance has been ordered printed, but the required 10 days have not expired. Saturday is the last day on which it could be passed on third reading in order to make the money available January 1, since five days must elapse after its final passage before the money may be used. At the regular Council meeting last night several aldermen wanted to meet again next Saturday night for this purpose, but it was pointed out that other routine business would come up next Monday, and the Council finally decided to make a clean sweep of it all Monday night.

"The city can do without money for one day, at least," said one alderman.

Will We Pay Revision.

Bids on the proposed west side fire station will also come up for consideration next Monday, as will the milk ordinance, which has been printed, but which was not put on its final passage last night because of the absence of Dr. P. O. Hanford, city health commissioner. The Council wants to be sure the ordinance is absolutely correct before taking final action. This is the ordinance providing for the tuberculin test of all cows from which milk is sold in this city, and for other sanitary measures.

In connection with the west side fire station, the Council authorized the Mayor and city clerk to execute a deed for the city's property in the 800 block on Washington avenue, on which fire station No. 3 is located, in exchange for a site one block south, on Colorado avenue. In addition, the auditor and treasurer were authorized to pay $200 bonus for the new property, the entire proceedings being subject to the city attorney's approval of the new abstract.

Rebate on Water.

The Council passed a resolution authorizing the auditor and treasurer to rebate to all holders of Colorado City water receipts for the year 1907-8, the 25 per cent additional charge which was made at that time. All receipts, when presented, must bear the indorsement of the water commissioners.

This is a result of a recent decision of the state supreme court to the effect that Colorado Springs cannot charge residents outside its city limits more than those inside are taxed. A resolution was passed by the Council recently, rebating 25 per cent to all Colorado City property holders, who still own their property, and of 20 per cent to those who have sold their holdings. The substitute resolution passed last night, however, refunds the full amount to all.

The auditor was instructed to issue a warrant for $46.32 in favor of the Hassell Iron works, for water pipe delivered to the city in 1906. The bill had been overlooked, and since the Council paid all bills at that time, instead of the auditor, as at present, the matter had to be brought before the aldermen.

Six bids on the laying of about two miles of sidewalks in various parts of the city were opened and referred to the city engineer for tabulation. A. Smith

SAID TO BE FINE

EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW 34 THIS PRESCRIPTION.

Simply Stops Kidneys and Would Be Given a Trial.

Cut this out and put in some safe place to. It is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple and can be made up by anyone at home the ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood. There is nothing better than Kargon Compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe to use at any time.

J. C. Wallace and L. A. Coler each offered to do the work for 8 cents per square foot, thus making all three tie for the low bid. The Council may reject any or all bids.

Special Policeman.

The Mayor's appointment of M. A. Maxwell as special policeman at Prospect lake without pay, was confirmed.

To the Mayor was referred a petition of about 50 persons, asking that M. Harts be appointed city weigher.

On motion of Albin, William Gordon of 792 South Sherman street was granted junk peddler's license. An application for a similar license by M. Kocolone of 326 North Midland avenue was referred to Albin, this place being in Albin's ward.

TRAIN ROBBERS CAUGHT?

Engineer and Fireman on O. R. & N. Identify Men.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 21.—The engineer and fireman of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation company's train which was robbed near this city last Thursday night, positively identified today Harry Benson and Oscar Johnson as two of the men implicated in that crime.

Benson and Johnson, together with Chris Bone, were arrested here on Saturday for holding up a saloon. Various circumstances seemed to indicate that they knew something of the O. R. and N. robbery and identification by the engineer and fireman practically assures a charge being filed against them for that crime.

Bone attempted suicide in his cell today by hanging himself, but was unsuccessful and is little worse for his exploit.

The police have another man in custody who is believed to have been the third man in the train robbery.

20 OPERATORS LOSE JOBS; ONE ARRESTED

CONSPIRACY TO ROB WESTERN UNION DISCOVERED.

Message Filed by Company through Peculations of Employes Difficult to Determine.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 21. Investigation by the auditing department of the Western Union Telegraph company, aided by private detectives sent out along the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads from the Pacific coast to Minneapolis, has resulted in the arrest of the agent at Ritzville, Wash., the discharge of 20 telegraph operators at various other stations and uncovering of what is believed by the officials of the company to be a conspiracy systematically to rob the Western Union Telegraph company of tolls on messages filed by passengers on trains for transmission to points along the same line where the message could be handled without passing through a relay office.

In connection with the discharge of this score of operators, Superintendent Reid of the Western Union Telegraph company, said today:

"About a year ago our bookkeeping and auditing department began to experience difficulty in tracing messages of which they had no record in checking accounts, but upon which complaints had been received of nondelivery and delay.

"As high as 45 per cent of these messages were never reported in the monthly statements to our checking department and further investigation resulted in the positive proof that this proceeding held good on many messages filed with operators at railroad stations.

"The man arrested at Ritzville has confessed and his trial is set for the early part of the year in the superior court. We cannot say yet what our losses as a result of these peculations may amount to, as the checking has not been completed and in many instances no trace of messages filed for transmission can even be found, as no report was turned in."

POLICE CAPTAIN NEGLIGENT

Commissioners Investigate Death of Morris Haas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—The police commissioners, at the close of an executive session lasting all this afternoon, announced that after a thorough investigation of the circumstances connected with the suicide of Morris Haas, at the branch county jail the day following his attempt to kill Francis J. Heney, they were unanimously of the opinion that the derringer with which he ended his own life had been concealed in his shoe, where it had been overlooked by Captain Duke, who searched him after the shooting of Heney in Judge Lawlor's court room. By a vote of 2 to 1, the commissioners found Captain Duke guilty of neglect of duty and fixed Wednesday, December 30, as the day for imposing sentence.

REMOVED FROM OFFICE

Seattle Head B. of R. T. Charged With Improper Conduct.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 21.—M. Sloan, master of the local lodge of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and F. C. Phelps secretary, were removed from office at a special meeting Saturday night by A. F. Whitney, vice grand master of the national organization. Phelps is secretary-treasurer of the Railway Employes' home, Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, which has no connection with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, but it is charged that Phelps and other members solicited funds for the home under the name of the brotherhood without its authority or sanction. The official terms of Phelps and Sloan would have expired tonight, but summary action was taken.

JEWELER'S HEAD BROKEN

Assaults Ex-Convict From Adjoining His Jewelry Store in Broad Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—Sigmund Hartig, a jeweler of the Mission district, is lying in the hospital with a fractured skull tonight, as a result of the attempted robbery of his place of business in broad daylight, the crime being very similar to the attempt which terrorized this city two years ago. Hartig's establishment was entered this afternoon by Louis Schultz, an ex-convict, who pretended that he desired to purchase a $50 diamond. When the dealer displayed the gem, Schultz attempted to grab it, and struck Hartig with a section of gas pipe rolled up in a piece of paper. Hartig saw the blow coming, and dodged back, but did not entirely avoid the bludgeon, which struck him on the side of the head. He did not loose his hold on the jewel, however, and retained consciousness long enough to give the alarm, which resulted in the capture of his assailant after a short chase. Schultz was released from Folsom prison on December 3.

BOY CRUSHED IN ELEVATOR

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Pushed by crowds of Christmas shoppers, Elmer A. Birdseye, the 7-year-old son of George Birdseye, a wholesale grocer of Seattle, Wash., was crushed to death in an elevator of the Dutton store here tonight. The boy was being taken by his grandfather, Elmer Birdseye, to see the toys. The elevator operator was arrested, pending a coroner's inquest.

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 21. S. C. Lillis, a wealthy banker and stockman of Lemoore, Cal., was sentenced by Judge Wellborn at a special session of the federal court today to six months in jail and fined $1,000. Lillis was convicted at the last session of the federal court on a charge of illegally inclosing large areas of government land in the Cantua district, where he has immense holdings. The case will be appealed and Lillis has been released on bond.

MAY CHANGE THE POSTAL SERVICE

SAVINGS BANK SYSTEM WILL MAKE IT NECESSARY.

Proposition Now Being Considered by Congress Is the Decentralization of Service.

By Sheldon S. Cline.

Special to The Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Congress is discovering that to establish a postal savings banks system is going to be a much more complicated undertaking than had been anticipated, and before it can be achieved it may be necessary to reorganize the entire postal service. The matter has been up for discussion in the Senate and the more senators have talked about it the more numerous have appeared the problems that must be solved.

Under the bill as now outlined, a depositor would have to make application for any money he wanted to withdraw, the application would have to be sent on to Washington and here audited and a check returned before the money could be had. A man out on the Pacific coast would have to wait two weeks, at least, before he could get his money, and that would be a decidedly unattractive feature of the government's venture into the banking business.

Pay Divide Work.

To overcome this objection, it is proposed to decentralize the entire postal service, dividing the work now done in Washington up among some 16 field districts with their headquarters in cities in different parts of the country. Such decentralization of the postal service is considered desirable, even apart from the postal savings system. Such a scheme already has been put in operation in the forest service and gives promise of working successfully. The forest service, however, is a small thing compared with the postal service, and a reorganization of the latter, such as is planned, would be one of the most important reforms of many years in the executive branch of the government.

The argument was presented in the Senate that as savings banks require from 30 to 90 days' notice of withdrawals, the requiring of a depositor in the postal savings bank to wait 15 days would not be a hardship. The answer to this was that in view of the low rate of interest the government proposed to pay, some other inducement, in addition to the increased security, would have to be offered. If a man could apply for his money one day and receive it the next, it was argued, a powerful attraction would be afforded.

Another Knotty Problem.

Another point on which there is wide difference of opinion in the Senate is whether the money of a depositor should be withdrawable from any postoffice, or only from the postoffice in which he makes his deposits. Under the European system of postal savings banks the money may be withdrawn at any postoffice, subject to safeguards as to identification, etc. Under the bill pending in the Senate, withdrawals may only be made at the offices of deposit. Many senators regard this as the most serious objection to the proposed postal bank system.

It was suggested in debate the other day that any postmaster ought to be authorized to pay out money on the presentation of a passbook, but this clearly is impracticable. Clever rogues would most certainly find a way to swindle the government.

When it becomes generally known that Congress contemplates distributing the employes of the postal service in other cities throughout the country, a great wall of protest will go up from Washington. Objections to sending employes of the forest service out west were loud and strenuous, but that was only a marker to what would happen if the postal service is to be divided.

Washington, of course, depends largely for its existence on the government employes. Their salaries are never reduced, their pay days are always regular, and even though times may be hard in other parts of the country the depression is not seriously felt here.

But this tendency to distribute the government employes over the country is appalling. If the thing should become fashionable, what is going to become of Washington? If the forest and postal services may to advantage be divided up over the country, why not other departments? There would seem to be as much reason why the general land office should transact its business in the west as the forest service, and it might be found advantageous to divide army and navy administration up over the country.

Washingtonians dream of the time when this will be the world's greatest capital. The liberal manner in which Congress has been appropriating money for the beautification of the city would furnish foundation for this dream. But there cannot be a great city unless there are people to inhabit it. The inhabitants of the District of Columbia hope Congress will take this into consideration before it goes too far in the policy of decentralization.

AUGUSTA, Dec. 21.—The Taft family took possession of the Perritt cottage at noon today moving from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, where they have been guests since their arrival here. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 21.—Thomas G. Connelly, general agent of the Gould lines in this city, and one of the best-known railroad men on the coast, died today as the result of a stroke of paralysis. When that road was joined with the Gould lines he was given the same position for the joint Harriman in California which are not connected with the railroad. Mr. Shoup, who is one of the best-known railroad men in the west, will be directed in the duties of his new position by William F. Herrin, chief of the Southern Pacific's law department.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 21.—J. F. Springer, yardmaster of the Southern Pacific company, at Reno, is a third claimant for a share in the estate of Christopher Springer, said to be a German baron, who died, leaving property worth $10,000,000, in Wilmington, Del. Springer says his grandfather and the grandmother of Arizona and William Lyle of St. Louis, who also claim a share in the estate, were brother and sister, and that he is a lineal descendant of Baron Christopher Springer. He has wired to Wilmington, setting forth his claims.

REGISTRATION FAIRLY LIGHT

Sessions of Boards Show Little Result as Compared to House-to-House Canvass.

Despite the comparatively heavy house-to-house canvass recently made by the registrars, preliminary to the charter convention election which will be held January 19, the total registration in most of the precincts in this city is lighter than before the general election last month. The last session of the registrars was held yesterday.

Some interesting facts developed during the recent registration. In Ward 2, precinct 1, for instance, 232 voters, or 32 more than during the house-to-house canvass preceding the general election, were registered. There were only 36 registered at the board's session, December 15, and only 29 yesterday, so that the total number registered in that precinct is 297, as compared with 420 before the fall election. Of the 297 registered, the women predominate, numbering 166 as against 131 men.

Woods was also placed under bond of $800 on each of two counts of burglary and larceny. Both defendants were remanded to the county jail in default of bail.

GILDING A HUGE DOME.

From Popular Mechanics.

The entire dome of Philadelphia's great city hall is to be covered with gold, and more than 10,000,000 sheets of gold leaf will be used before the task is completed.

So that as little of the precious metal as possible shall be wasted, each workman will be inclosed in a screen adjusted about his waist as he puts the metal in place, leaf by leaf, hundreds of feet above the streets.

The gold leaf to be used is being manufactured especially for the city in book form, each book containing 25 leaves, 3 3-8 inches square. These are delivered in packs of 20 books. To allow a single leaf for every 3-4 of inches of space to be covered will necessitate the use of 20,461 packs, which makes 409,220 books, or 10,1[illegible],000 leaves.

To cleanse the streets of the city of London nearly 30,000,000 gallons of water are annually required.

TELLER SHOWS HIS HAND ON THE SILVER QUESTION

FAVORS CIRCULATING NOTES SECURED BY WHITE METAL

His Letter to London Bimetallist Creates Stir in Wall Street—Acted Alone, Commission Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The Times tomorrow will say:

"In important banking circles in Wall street something very much like a sensation was created yesterday by the discovery in a financial weekly published in Paris, L'Economiste Europeen, of a letter written by Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado, a member of the Aldrich currency commission, to Morton Frewen, the well-known bimetallist of London, in which Senator Teller seems plainly to indicate that the commission has under consideration a plan to issue circulating notes secured by silver if the government of India will co-operate.

"In his letter, which was published December 4, Senator Teller is quoted as saying that he is personally in favor of the issue of small notes of limited legal tender secured by silver, but that since the purchase of silver to secure such notes would advance the price of the metal to a figure where India might decide to melt down its rupees and sell the metal, it is necessary for the currency commission here to know what the attitude of the Indian government would be. He says on this point:

"'Will India interest itself officially in our inquiry into a question of the highest importance for the finances of India? Naturally I ask this of you in an entirely informal way. We will make the proposal officially if you learn that it will be well received, but we do not wish to expose ourselves to an absolute refusal.'

"Inquiries made by bankers to ascertain whether Senator Teller's suggestions with Mr. Frewen had the sanction of the entire Aldrich commission, developed the contrary to be the case. From members of the commission, with whom these bankers got into touch, the following statement of the situation was obtained:

"The commission knows nothing of Senator Teller's correspondence with Mr. Frewen. Mr. Frewen is acting absolutely independently and alone.

"No proposition to issue such notes has ever come before the committee for discussion, and if it had it would not have been entertained.

"It must be remembered that there are eight men on the commission, and that there were in the beginning almost as many views regarding the things to be done. Gradually the work is narrowing to definite ends, with which there will probably be unanimous agreement in the end.

"How ill-placed an insult over Senator Teller's letter is, may be better understood when it is remembered that both the senator and Mr. Frewen are and always have been ardent champions in the cause of silver."

From the Touche Blade.

The long winter season is upon us, unpitied. An impatient public may now wrap the drapery of its own selfishness around and soothed in the knowledge that the whole distressing business of the fashions for dogs for the season of 1908-1909 has been settled. It is just off the press.

The styles for dogs' clothes are fixed in Paris, the home of La Vogue, as those just from abroad express it. The city designs and defines and commands, and worse still, names the prices. What more natural than a man dress-architect should also work up blue prints for the suits for dogs? If he didn't some competitor would get the money, and one a stranger arrives in a Parisian dressmaking shop it is considered impertinent to suggest to him, with any loose change. It bulges the pockets. But let us not forget the dog clothes.

The new chic tailor-made mantle will replace the scandalous jacket so popular last year. The mantle is expressly intended to guard the wearer from the chills breezes carried up by the fast moving motor cars.

The handkerchief will be carried in a little purse attached by a leash.

It has been decided that Fido must use the same perfume as that employed by his mistress.

The jewelry will be gold bracelets or collars with diamonds. They will be worn on the forelegs.

Footwear is no longer a mystery. It seems that many dog owners object to the large appearance thus given the feet.

It will be seen that little will go to be neglected when the chill wind do blow, and he will not be forgotten as to those small ornaments which go to make up the satisfactions of life. The mistress has been very thoughtful of her darling. We wish though we knew what the dog thought about it.

Scott—I remember reading of a very rich man who said he'd sooner be poor.

Mott—Yes, and probably you remember reading somewhere that all men are liars.

The Old Christmas Pudding

BY ROBERT DONNELL

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY C. H. LUNTE

How dear to this heart are the scenes of my cubhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view—
The kitchen, where mother prepare us the grub would,
And every loved dish that my infancy knew;
The wide spreading table, the chairs which stood by it,
The bell that was rung for the dinner time call,
The seat of my father, my own there a-nigh it,
And e'en the rude pudding which hung on the wall—
The old Christmas pudding, the English plum pudding,
The cloth covered pudding which hung on the wall!

That cloth covered pudding I hailed as a treasure,
For often, some months ere the season of Yule,
I found it the source of an exquisite pleasure
To sniff at the same on returning from school.
How ardent I seized it, with hands that were greasy
From sandwiches sneaked from the cupboard so tall!
To bite me a crescent was not so dead easy;
That bag of stout muslin protected it all—
The old Christmas pudding, the English plum pudding
The cloth covered pudding which hung on the wall!

How sweet from the brown, mussy bag to receive it
And hand it in hunks through the cleft of my lips!
Not the stuffed turkey gobbler could tempt me to leave it;
I ate till my appetite suffered eclipse.
But now, far removed from the loved situation,
The tear of regret will intrusively fall
As fancy reverts to my father's plantation,
Because I can't tackle plum pudding at all—
The soggy plum pudding, the perilous pudding,
The gout giving pudding which hangs on the wall!

MRS. ANNIS TELLS STORY OF SHOOTING

WIFE OF MURDERED MAN ON THE STAND.

Insists That Thornton Hains Ran Around to His Brother and Told the Way to the Water's Edge.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Dec. 21.—The trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains reached a climax of dramatic intensity today, when Mrs. Helene E. Annis, widow of William E. Annis, in a deliberate recital lasting for nearly three hours pictured the killing of her husband, as he sat at the tiller of his boat, by Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr. Mrs. Annis nearly fainted a few minutes before her examination was concluded, but quickly recovered. It was a hard day for the defense and counsel for Hains was exhausted in the cross examination, which was directed toward the state's witness in an effort to shake their testimony. Thornton Hains lost much of the easy nonchalance that has characterized his manner in previous sessions. When led from the court by two deputy sheriffs, the prisoner appeared dejected and careworn.

Mrs. Annis made an impressive figure on the witness stand as she told in quiet tones her story of August 15 at the Bayside Yacht club. Several new points added dramatic interest to the trial. When Annis' boat came alongside the float, the widow testified, Thornton Hains beckoned to his brother and led the way down the runway. The shooting followed within a few moments.

Lawyer McIntyre sought to discredit the checking [illegible] which the [illegible] prosecution presented as that of the author of the anonymous letters [illegible] induced the girl to commit the crime and kept Mrs. Annis on this point under cross-examination for [illegible] half an hour. Hains' counsel developed that Mrs. Annis had not until last week told District Attorney Darrow that the defendant had beckoned to her to alight.

"I ran down the runway and Thornton Hains pointed his revolver at me. I turned to go back and he pressed the weapon against my back, saying 'You get out of here or I will set the [illegible] on you.' I [illegible] and looking back saw my husband falling into the water."

So said Mrs. Annis relating her story and this new evidence the lawyers for Hains struggled vainly to discredit.

BATTLESHIP MAINE ON SECRET MISSION

IT IS THOUGHT TO BE BOUND FOR VENEZUELA.

The American Government Is at Present Without Naval Representation There.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The most complete mystery surrounds the destination of the battleship Maine, which left Norfolk today under sealed orders.

Neither the state nor the navy department officials will make any statement on the subject. As far as it is known the vessel has gone on "a cruise," and they will not deny nor affirm rumors that the ship is bound for any duty in Venezuelan waters.

The American government is without any naval representation in that immediate section, and should an outbreak against the existing government occur, such American interests as may exist in the ports of LaGuaira, Porto Cabello and Maracaibo would have to appeal to the navies of foreign nations for help.

As the Maine is equipped with wireless telegraphy, this affords a ready means of communication with the United States if necessary. The Maine is in command of Rear Admiral Conway H. Arnold. He was in Washington on Saturday in conference with the naval officials. The conference, it is understood, was followed by a talk last night between Secretary Root and Secretary Newberry.

STENOGRAPHERS AS WIVES

From the Savannah News.

From day to day it may be seen in the newspapers, treated as a matter out of the ordinary and therefore of much interest, that "he," meaning a man of money and influence and social standing, "has married his stenographer." The idea seems to be that because "he" has money and "she" is or was a stenographer, something unusual has occurred, something on the order of the prince who married the [illegible] in the fairy story.

But why, really, should there be any fuss about it? Applying common sense to the proposition, are not the chances about equal that "he" has done much better by marrying his stenographer than he would have done by going into "society" for his bride, and that "she" has made sacrifices in marrying him? The stenographer knows what life means, knows what its struggles are, and what its disappointments are inevitable. The society miss is a helpless burden upon those who may become charged with her support.

The girl who knows how to work and who goes out and does it is not a burden to anybody, but a help and an inspiration. What is more natural, therefore, and what could be more in the line of common sense than for a business man to select as his life partner a young woman who knows how to work, who knows how to think, who knows how to execute the ideas she has evolved?

The cold fact is that men of money possibly make a great mistake when they fail to consider their stenographers and office girls as desirable candidates for promotion to wifehood. The happiest marriage is that which is mutually most helpful, and the trained business man must certainly find the most help in a trained city girl, in a woman who knows how to order [illegible] and who will help him work [illegible] The stenographer bride is altogether worthy of sincerest congratulation and best wishes, and the man who marries her, if she is the right sort of man—is to be congratulated.

IT'S DOING EFFECTIVE WORK

IN the final analysis, the usefulness of a commercial organization must be determined by its effectiveness. Measured by such a test, the Chamber of Commerce of this city is a most valuable force in this community. The greater part of the work of the organization is done so quietly, and as a matter of daily routine that it is apt to escape the attention of the average citizen unless his attention is particularly called to it.

The publicity work of the Chamber of Commerce is worth to this city tens of thousands of dollars every year. The Sunday Gazette contained a news article showing how this feature of the work had recently been broadened in scope, and outlining some of the plans by which its value to the Pikes Peak region can be still further increased. The monthly news service, reaching every month 1,500 leading daily and weekly papers with a combined circulation of more than 15,000,000 readers, brings direct results. This is supplemented by the supplying of a number of feature stories to newspapers and magazines. One notable instance of recent date was the publication in Government, a high-class magazine with 100,000 readers, of the article on "A Unique Western City" by Mr. Henry Russell Wray, former secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The value of an article of this nature is difficult to estimate. It is this feature of the work that is to be broadened during the coming year.

SECURING PATRONAGE FOR PUBLICITY. Last August Mr. Wray was delegated by the Chamber of Commerce to accept an invitation to attend the convention of the International Typographical Union in Boston. There he made a speech on the subject of "Climate vs. Tuberculosis." Extracts from this address were sent by the Associated Press to papers all over the country, and given by them publicity which could not have been purchased for any amount of money. A more recent instance of this kind of work is shown in the manner in which the item regarding the transfer of the Garden of the Gods was copied by papers throughout the country. Mr. Alva W. Henderson, the present secretary of the Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in securing for this item national publicity.

In the course of a year, the Chamber of Commerce distributes 40,000 pieces of its own literature, besides nearly an equal amount that is supplied by railroads. This brings results. Just lately, a new edition of 10,000 of the pamphlets entitled "Colorado Springs, the Playground for the Entire Republic," has been printed, while 5,000 of "The Rockies as a Winter Residence" will be off the press shortly. In many lines, the literature is nearly depleted and during the coming year will have to be replenished.

WHERE MONEY COUNTS. Daily correspondence is alone an item which is of invaluable benefit to the city. Hardly a day passes but that half a dozen letters are received from prospective investors and homeseekers, in addition to the large number who are referred to the Chamber of Commerce by other organizations and public officials. Every letter is given personal attention and each inquirer is furnished with literature. Results from this source are sometimes difficult to trace but unquestionably many of the tourists and permanent residents who have come to Colorado Springs have had their attention favorably drawn to this city by Chamber of Commerce literature or some phase of its publicity work.

Entertainment of the city's guests is another important item. The Chamber of Commerce is also active in having Colorado Springs represented at such gatherings as the American Mining Congress, the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, the National Irrigation Congress, the Lake Mohonk Peace Conference and the Trans-Mississippi Congress.

The Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in bringing to Colorado Springs the Modern Woodmen Sanitarium, which has already spent in this city about $85,000, and which, when completed, will bring here an annual revenue of about $100,000. At the present time, the Chamber of Commerce is interested in three national home propositions, and is considering a campaign which will bring to the attention of many organizations throughout the country the question of establishing national homes and the advantages of Colorado Springs as a site for such institutions.

MORE MEMBERS WANTED. The Chamber of Commerce is supported by the people of Colorado Springs. It has been granted yearly appropriations by the City Council and the Board of County Commissioners, the banks and street railway company, but individuals mainly contribute to its support. The bulk of its funds must come from active members. At the present time, this membership is at a low mark, the total being only slightly over two hundred. In a city of this size such an organization should have a membership treble this number. Cheyenne, Wyoming, with a population of 15,000, has an Industrial Club with 375 members. Woodward, Oklahoma, with only 1,000 population, enrolls 264 members, while Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania, which has a population of 67,017, has 675 in its Board of Trade alone. Annual dues in the Chamber of Commerce are nominal, being only $5 a year. Every citizen and taxpayer owes it to himself and to the community to give his moral and financial support to an organization which is doing such continuously effective work for the city—that is constantly advertising far and wide the advantages of Colorado Springs as the most unique and attractive city in the world.

MR. RITTENHOUSE'S ADVANCEMENT.

THE election of Mr. E. B. Rittenhouse to the presidency of the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society of New York, announced in today's dispatches, will be highly gratifying to his many friends in Colorado Springs, because in a peculiar sense it is an advancement won by merit. Four years ago Mr. Rittenhouse was appointed state insurance commissioner by Governor Peabody. At that time his knowledge of the insurance business was extremely limited but the friends who recommended the appointment felt confident of his ability to make good and their confidence was entirely justified. No man ever strove more earnestly and few with greater success, to master the intricacies of a business and it was not many months until Mr. Rittenhouse was known to Colorado as the most efficient insurance supervisor it had ever had, and to the insurance world as a remarkably just and capable official. It was he who drafted the admirable insurance law enacted by the last legislature a law which is generally regarded as second only to the New York law in general excellence. His supervision of the companies doing business in Colorado has been of such a nature as to secure for policyholders the greatest measure of safety and protection, at the same time avoiding the slightest injustice to those companies—fortunately the great majority—that are conducting their business properly.

Mr. Rittenhouse's advancement has been won solely through merit and congratulations are due equally to him and to the company that has secured his services.

PUBLICITY IN CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

From the New York Tribune.

The system of publicity is a great improvement over the old method of secrecy, which gave rise to charges and insinuations that could not be met. If, as a result of it, campaign funds are smaller, that is a gain, too; for the Taft fund, judged by results, was ample. A larger sum would have been wasted. The public views with favor economy in election expenditures.

THE SHORT SESSION.

From the Washington Post.

Congress is in old and tried hands in both houses. They learned long ago that it is the country which directs Congress, and not Congress which directs the country. There are no great issues before Congress, calling for prolonged debates or experiments in legislation. The session will be devoted principally to the allotment of funds for running the government—an important duty, which, if well performed, will consume most of the time until March 4.

WORK TO BE DONE.

From the New York Mail.

Why should not the short session do something distinctive and memorable by taking up again the bill in relief of American shipping? This bill came very near passing in the long session, and since then the necessity for action has been reinforced by the withdrawal of still other of our merchant ships. The amount sought is small—not so large as single items in the average river and harbor and public buildings bill, and the plan is only to restore to our merchant marine the profit unwisely and unjustly created from it by the government ocean mail service. There is a chance to do constructive work by the adoption of a plan well understood and recommended by increasing national urgencies.

LABOR IN INDIA.

From the New York Post.

Official estimates show that the Hindu earned 4 cents a day in 1850; 3 cents a day in 1882; and, in 1900, after English rule had been given nearly a generation in which to prove its inestimable advantages, less than 2 cents. The truth is, nobody save an English official in the India service can even glance at the government's own statements about the peninsula without scenting the farce in the London Times' boast about "half a century of unselfish toil" which has "brought into being the new and pulsating life of India." Not all the outward signs of economics, the railroads, street lamps, municipal buildings and schools can hide the fact that these improvements have been made as investments, and that, on the whole, they have profited the stranger far more than the hungry millions whose taxes have created them.

THE UNEMPLOYED RICH

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Much has been written and spoken concerning the lot of the unemployed poor; the lot of the rich who give themselves nothing to do is sometimes harder still to endure. Their dull season lasts year in, year out, for more amusement soon becomes stale, flat, unprofitable, and life is thenceforward an unmitigated boredom.

There are societies that concern themselves with the problem of finding employment for the poor; it is time an association was formed to get certain wealthy people something to do. There are odds in rich folk as in descons, and most rich men and women are the hardest-working portion of the community—it is the comparatively small number of "corrupt and luxurious idlers" that would be an object of concern to the proposed association.

These reflections are suggested by the inane and vacuous ways of entertainment some of the jeunesse doree, and their elders as well, find for themselves from time to time. The follies of 1907 gave place to those of 1908, and presently the latter, in their turn, will be superseded by 1909's chaff which the wind driveth away.

It is more difficult to find employment for gentlemen and gentlewomen of infinite leisure than it is to find work for the poor, for the delicately bred folk in purple and fine linen sometimes know little beyond badinage and bagatelle. They have spent their lives doing nothing till it has become their only accomplishment, the only part in which they are letter-perfect. The poor, from sheer necessity, have learned to turn their hands and minds to thousand employment.

SENSIBLE WORDS ON ECONOMY.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

Secretary Cortelyou is aware of the painful fact that "economy" is not a very popular watchword among politicians. Even the taxpayers, as philosophical writers on democracy have observed in sorrow rather than in anger, are not as enthusiastic and resolute in pushing economy as they are in pushing large enterprises which may or may not prove profitable. But Mr. Cortelyou is an efficient and businesslike administrator who owes his high position to sheer merit and industry, and he does not like waste and carelessness.

Accordingly he devotes some sensible paragraphs of his annual report to the dry subject of economy. He says that there have been excessive expenditures under many administrations, that a careful study of the entire subject of the budget ought to be made "with a view to applying the money of the taxpayers in the most efficient and beneficial manner," and that some time in the future Congress may see the wisdom of giving over an entire session to consideration of ways and means of reducing operating expenses.

For his own part, Mr. Cortelyou knows that many millions could be saved annually without the least sacrifice of any public benefit. He doubtless wonders why the ardor for "conservation of natural resources" does not extend to conservation of wealth already converted into capital and money, to prevention of waste of hard-earned millions. And he is oldfashioned enough to add that "few domestic reforms would do so much to set an example of good business and economical government" as intelligent economy.

Waste is not always a form of graft, but it is almost as demoralizing as graft. It is outrageously unfair to the taxpayer, and it reflects discredit on the administrators who permit it or who do not wake upward the matter to investigate and order reforms. It may yet become necessary to organize national and local "economy" associations.

PRESIDENTIAL SCANDAL.

From the Providence Bulletin.

The business of publishing scandal about the President and his family may have its temporary advantages, but it is rapidly reaching a point where even at the start its disadvantages are far too great to make it worth while. Reputable newspapers are eager to see the President treat up the trade, for it lessens the uplifting influence of journalism which, as the President says, is one of the most valuable forms of public service. For the sake of the country it would be well if the industry of manufacturing presidential scandal should be blown into atoms by Rooseveltian dynamite.

ANOTHER BURDEN WAITING.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

For a century the history of Hayti has been that of a continued impoverishment and a sinking into new depths of degradation, making a territory of enormous natural resources a blot in the face of civilization.

And when we look about the West Indies we see that there is but one way out for Hayti—but one way over which there is hope for her people to become a civilized community.

The British West Indies are at least orderly, and in most cases fairly prosperous. Their black populations are acquiring habits of individual industry and self-respect. The French West Indies are at least orderly, though lagging behind the British in the general wellbeing of their people.

Under American government, Porto Rico is both prosperous and orderly, and under American direction Cuba is prosperous and promising to become orderly.

Under American financial control Santo Domingo is deprived of incitements to disorder, and is becoming a land where the common many may at least hope to eat his bread in peace. Only of Hayti can it be truly said that there is no progress upward—only downward.

The manifest destiny of Hayti is to be taken under the tutelage of some nation strong enough to enforce public order and maintain a government that cannot be overthrown merely because turbulence is seeking for spoils.

The general question of the capacity of the black race to carry on a state whose conditions measurably approach those of civilization need not be discussed. The Haytian part of the black race is visibly incapable of the task. That has been demonstrated by the experience of a century.

The fixed national policies of the United States do not permit that any other nation shall perform this necessary duty to civilization. It follows that the United States must sooner or later, and the sooner the better, take up the burden.

THE KING OF ENGLAND AND LIVE STOCK SHOWS.

From the Denver Republican.

There recently appeared in a Chicago paper a cable from England announcing that the illness of the King would prevent his opening the English Fat Stock Show at Smithfield as has been his custom for years. This piece of news at first blush hardly seems worth the cable charges to be sent to America, but underlying and back of it is a recognition of agricultural and live stock by our best people which makes the news worth while to be passed by the blue pencil man.

In Europe, England especially, the Queen and the ladies of the royal family followed by the ladies of the court all visit the stock shows. They put on their heavy walking shoes and go carefully over the exhibits, and the present Queen, like her late respected mother-in-law, is no mean judge of a good bullock, a sheep or a horse, and the ladies all inspect the stock with great care while the King, as a farmer at Sandringham, produces some of the best live stock of old England.

It has been argued that the men of America of big affairs are lost to everything but commercialism, while the ladies of the high set would not stoop to anything quite so low as a visit to a stock show, but this was surely disproved at the first international stock show held in Chicago the first ten days of this month. We find among the exhibitors in the cattle and sheep department the names of Wardwell and Swenson, two of Wall Street's brokers; Sir George Drummond, president of the Bank of Montreal, and in the horse department, Judge Moore, E. H. Harriman, W. K. and A. G. Vanderbilt, J. W. Bedford, and I. M. Watson, the great railroad men of the age, while we find that empire builder and constructionist, J. J. Hill, delivering an address to the exhibitors. In the boxes at the show and wandering around viewing the stock, and frequently in the ring driving their own horses, we find the wives and daughters of these great men. What a sane, wholesome occupation, what encouragement to the farmers to have their ranks joined by such men of money succesful. What need for commissions to inquire into the farmers' conditions when his calling is receiving actual working recognition from right thinking men who are capable of doing big things for their business.

After all, why not? The prosperity of our country is absolutely dependent upon the farmer. What more noble calling, and properly conducted, what business requires more brains and brawn to win success?

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, December 22, 1908.

Now white-mailed Winter shakes his spear,
And in the sky fantastic signs appear.

The Sun enters Capricornus. At 12:25 a. m. this day winter begins, to last 89 days.

At Washington the ingress takes place close to the lower meridian with Saturn just setting. Such a complication as this has ever been held by astrology to denote rumors of war, troubles for rulers and disorders in high places.

Saturn's position points to possible seismic disturbances along the 150th degree, east longitude.

Tomorrow's eclipse falls in evil conjunction with these positions. Its rule will last for some time.

Those born between now and the end of this month are on the cusp of Sagittarius-Capricorn. The influence is for talent, light-hearedness and enthusiasm. Many musicians, ministers and statesmen are born in these signs. The gift of vision and foresight is generally pronounced in these cusp-born ones. Moonstone and pearls are the stones and black and white are the astral colors.

The signs for today are excellent for shopping, dressmaking and personal adornment.

There is a promise that "love and affection will count for more than much gold" in these 24 hours.

Women with this birthdate will be tempted to sacrifice much during the twelvemonth for position or wealth.

Success in business is indicated for men with this birthdate. They must beware against indulgence.

Generosity even to excess is in the signs over children born this day. Girls will be by nature loving for nursing. Its child have brilliant

That used to give
My small inside,
The pumpkin pie,
The doughnuts brown,

Brought out from town,
Don't vary much
Appeal to me.
But buttermilk

INVENTOR OF SHIRT WAIST

Women of the Nation Owe Unpayable Debt to Her.

From the Cleveland Leader.

Joseph Osborn is dead, and if the women of the nation, of the whole world for the matter of that, only knew their unpayable indebtedness to her they would wear mourning bands on their arms for 30 days and get extra allowances from their husbands and fathers and brothers to raise a glorious monument over her bones. All the women's clubs, too, from Zanesville to Zanzibar would drape their halls and put suitable resolutions of thanks on their minutes.

Mrs. Osborn invented the feminine shirt waist.

According to the consensus of feminine opinion, no single article of feminine attire [illegible] has ever equaled the shirt waist. It is at once the most comfortable, the most becoming, and the most adaptable article in my lady's wardrobe. It is equally being drawn out to any extent like an accordion. It is formal and it's informal, and everything that lies between. It is suitable for anything from a seance with the cooking stove to a reception at the Coffracks with a footman at the front door.

Its genesis was simple. Mrs. Osborn saw her husband's soft shirts and envied them. From that, as one who has a surface knowledge of the sex will testify, it was but a step to the annexation. Mrs. Osborn went to the man who supplied her husband and told him that she wished a half dozen shirts built on the regulation masculine working plans save slight divergencies here and there and which decided curtailment of their length. He demurred; she insisted, and she won.

She wore them herself; she gave them to her patrons, for she was the most famous dressmaker in New York, and from them sprung the millions of shirt waists that have covered and made attractive the women of the world.

Mrs. Osborn was a wonderful woman in many ways. With no experience and only the necessity for action to inspire her, she left the ranks of New York's Four Hundred and with only $2,500 to start with built up a business that took an entire building, employed 150 persons, and enabled her to leave an estate of fully half a million.

This was her material reward, but the shirt waist, to shift it from its proper place for a moment, was her crown of glory.

DEPORTED WRONG CHILD

Sinking of Finance Results in Error in Identities.

From the New York Times.

A mistake that in many respects rivals that made by Little Buttercup in the operetta of "Pinafore" was brought to light Thursday by the sinking of the Finance. Among the children picked up by the Georgic after the collision as one who was being deported to Colon as the daughter of an insane man, while the little girl should have been sent to the Roman Catholic orphan asylum.

Nine-year-old Pepita Etommonon had been given to the immigration authorities by the Sisters of Mercy who have charge of the Roman Catholic asylum at Sedgwick avenue and Kingsbridge road, in place of Blanche Matara, the 8-year-old child of Tony Matara, who was adjudged insane and unfit for citizenship. He was shipped out of the country, together with his 5-year-old son and the little girl, who was supposed to be his daughter. Had the Finance not been wrecked, Pepita would now be en route to the Canal Zone in the care of an insane man.

The confusion is due to a mistake in identity by one of the sisters at the orphan asylum and the simplicity of the little girl, Pepita. She readily answered all the questions put to her by the matron, who represented the immigration bureau, and was placed on board the Finance, bound for the Canal Zone, on Monday. The delay in sailing due to the fog, impelled the officers of the asylum and the immigration inspectors to try to get the girl off the ship, but the haze that held up the ship also hid it from the view of the searchers.

The real daughter of Matara was brought to this country more than a year ago with her 5-year-old brother. Matara had been a laborer on the canal, but a breakdown in his health compelled him to leave Colon.

ESPERANTO AGAIN!

Users of New York Society Declare It an Improvisible Language.

From the New York Times.

Although Esperanto has been hailed as the coming world-tongue for several years on both sides of the Atlantic, with the Young Men's Christian association conducting classes in it, and Colonel George B. Harvey giving much space to its promulgation in his North American Review, the officers of the New York Esperanto society have decided that Esperanto is as faulty as Volapuk, its predecessor, was found to be 20 years ago.

At the last meeting of the society, on November 19, the members, who have dwindled down from several hundred to 15, voted unanimously that Esperanto was too full of logical defects to be worth wasting any more time on. They decided to take up in its place the study of Ido, another international language brought forward by the Marquis L. de Beaufront at the meeting of the committee of the International language delegation, in Paris, in October, 1907.

Officers of the New York Esperanto society pointed out yesterday that the discredit into which the international language has fallen was not local, but world-wide. They showed recent depreciating articles written about the language by such former enthusiasts as L. de Guesnet, formerly editor of the Paris Esperanto organ, Tra La Mundo; Harry J. Stratton, formerly secretary of The London Progresso; the Marquis L. de Beaufront, Dr. L. Couturat, P. L. Meyer of Dresden, R. Auerbach of Dresden, O. H. Moore of Chicago, and Dr. J. R. Harger of Seattle, all of whom were leaders in the Esperanto movement in Europe five years ago, and the movement three years ago here.

TWO TRIUMPHS OF CHEMISTRY.

From the Boston Transcript.

Two remarkable instances in which the chemist's laboratory has supplanted the farmer and the field are cited in a recent publication. There was a time when India produced large quantities of indigo every year on plantations. The planters were wished that ever in Germany chemists were at work making indigo, but they only laughed. Then the announcement came that synthetic indigo, made in the laboratory, was a commercial success. It was absolutely the same as the natural indigo, only, if anything, a little bit purer. Now India no longer supplies the world with indigo. A German laboratory makes the whole supply, and even India buys in Germany.

There was a time when large areas in France were devoted to the cultivation of madder root, from which the red dye alizarin was made. Again a German chemist improved upon nature, and made artificial alizarin at a cost of less than a third that of the natural product. It wasn't an inferior imitation; it was the real thing. Now Germany supplies the world with alizarin. The only red cloth you will see today that is dyed with the natural dye is in the trousers of the French gendarme. And this is purely for sentimental reasons. The French government maintains a farm and grows a few acres of madder, that the French army need not be dependent upon its natural enemy, Germany, for anything it uses.

WHAT RELIGION UNITES.

Real religion unites. It does not deal with differences, but emphasizes unities. Whatever divides, setting man against man in strife and debate, is not religion, whatever it may be labeled. Real religion deals with fundamental verities, and fundamental verities are the same the world over. It is only the superfical and the seeming that cause differences. In the greatest facts and forces of life all men believe alike. There is no difference of view regarding the power of love or the right of justice. eath Has Called 277 World Workers, Who Answered Adsum" to Their Names When the Year 1908 Came In Public Service and Industrial Life, the Arts, Sciences, and Professions, All Are Now the Poorer for the Loss of Those Long-Prominent Leaders Who Lately Were Foremost in the Ranks.

WRITTEN FOR THE GAZETTE BY WARWICK J. PRICE

THE OPTIMIST, in the long run, is right. Facts back him up in his sturdy claim that the world grows better year by year; it does advance as month follows month. Nor is this one whit less true because of black spots on the chart of the days, because of heavy-scored entries to debit as well as on the cheerier side of Time's great ledger.

With each closing twelvemonth, however, as we pause to draw breath and take account of stock before plunging into life's whirl once more, there must come a sobering thought of those mighty ones whose works have ended since the year came in. Today such a realization comes with solemn emphasis, for 277 men and women, long standing well to the forefront of the world's activities, will no more answer "Present" to their names. What deep loss is there in the deaths of such a half-dozen as these:

Grover Cleveland:

"By his ruggedness, his courage, his tenacity, and his devotion to his ideals of duty, he did a mighty work in elevating the standards of public service."—Governor Hughes.

Victorien Sardou:

"Far more than any other dramatist he has ruled the stage for the last 35 years. In the number of his pieces and the variety of the genres he successfully essayed, he was marvelously fertile. No playwright has ever been so widely international within the limits of his lifetime."

Ira D. Sankey:

"One of the best loved of men, endeared to the hearts of many nations, his work was yet far from personal. It builded for the future and proved, again, what men and children women perpetually forget, that religion lies at the deep base of life."

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman:

"He found the liberals a mob and made of them a victorious army. As a statesman he showed the saving gifts of common sense and directness of utterance, and an unselfish devotion to a high conception of duty which has gained him a distinguished place in the roll of the servants of the British Empire."—London Times.

Charles Eliot Norton:

"He was a scholar. More than this, he was a patriot. Most of all, he was a missionary of civilization. In his death both the great English-speaking nations are poorer in all that is best in the intellectual life of both."—Clement Shorter.

Pablo Sarasate:

"He was the wizard of his art—all fire and magic. In the famous Whistler portrait of him, he emerges, phantom-like, from a shadowy background, his bow a wand of magic—and there was a true man."

All Nations Have Mourned.

If the United States and France, England and Spain, have been most directly affected by these deaths, yet has every nation of the world round had cause to mourn. Here at home we have lost such national figures as Redfield Proctor and William Boyd Allison, both "elder statesmen"; Charles Emory Smith, journalist and diplomat; Henry Codman Potter, prelate and publicist; and dear "Uncle Remus" Harris, who may have influenced the progress of the land far less than many another, but who won a place so close to the hearts of men that few, indeed, may be so sure of abiding affection in the long future.

To the north of us, Newfoundland, laments Sir Robert Reid, a Scotch stonemason who raised himself to be feudal lord of the island; and the broad-speaking Dominion will no more hear the verse of that most Canadian of poets, Louis Honore Frechette.

South of our borders, Mexico has been bereaved of her archbishop, Barquera; Cuba of her first president and foremost citizen, Estrada Palma; Porto Rico of her historian-patriot, Quinones, and Ecuador, Colombia and Honduras of ex-presidents—Veintemilla, Marroquin and Soto.

Merely to instance a single name from each nation, as the lengthening roster is read through, is to point to gold all question that 1908's onward march has cost dear:

England—The Duke of Devonshire, one of the real leaders of men.
France—Henri Becquerel, discoverer of the "rays" named for him.
Belgium—De Trooz, her premier and minister of the interior.
Denmark—Holger Drachman, "The Burns of Scandinavia."
Norway—Jonas Lie, poet, dramatist and novelist.
Russia—D. Pokotilleff, for 30 years foremost in her diplomacy.
Germany—Otto Pfleiderer, master thinker and sound critic.
Spain—Marquis Vega de Armijo, ex-premier.
Italy—Marquis De Rudinì, former premier and diplomat.
Greece—M. Bikelas, patriot and professor.
Hungary—Max Fäjk, journalist and patriot.
Turkey—Rejab, the "Young Turk," minister of war.
Egypt—Kamel Pasha, leader of the Nationalists.
Siam—E. H. Strobel, American adviser of the government.
Japan—Count Nodzu, general and educator.
Australia—James Munro, ex-premier of Victoria.
Hawaii—Prince David, once heir presumptive to the throne.
Brazil—Aquino Castro, chief justice of the supreme court.
Bolivia—Fernando Guachalla, president-elect.
Uruguay—Guillermo Garcia, general and politician.

Month by Month: Old and Young.

So the story has run its course, from the first chapter—here were the final periods to such careers as Morris K. Jessup's, a forwarder of great interests and nourisher of high ideals, and Edmund Clarence Stedman's, poet, critic, journalist, editor, philanthropist and banker—on through the months till one reads of a veteran German officer falling dead in his Kaiser's presence; of China's young emperor, "more sinned against than sinning," crossing over to the dim beyond surrounded by the cold ceremonies of the Orient; and, last, of the Autocrat of All the Russias walking bareheaded behind the bearer of his uncle, the Grand Duke Alexis.

Kwang-su of the Celestial Empire was yet not the youngest of the world's prominent ones to be called by death. He was 38, but the Duke de Chaulnes was still in his twenties and little Prince Stephen of Montenegro was but 5. At the other end of the list stand the names of such as William Callow (95) and Imogen Morel (91), the artists, John W. Oliver, the journalist (93), and Edler von Plener, the Nestor of Austrian politics (96). With such as these Gaston Boissier, the famous French classical student, was at only 80 still a young man.

A Score of Famous Women.

The mention of Mme. Morel suggests the year's losses in the ranks of famous womanhood. The initial day of the 365 saw ended the storied work in education which has been accomplished by Louise Holman Haynes and Susan Swett, the story writer, passed the self-same hour. Literature is also poorer for Katherine Prescott Wormeley and Louise de la Ramée (Ouida) and Allen Raine, and Louise Chandler Moulton and Mrs. A. L. Wister have told by their pens forever even as the chisel has fallen from the tempered hands of Harriet Hosmer.

Most famous of all, Tz'u An, Dowager Empress of China, "a Catherine of the Far East," and for a generation a maker of world's history, closed her romantic life in November, the same month witnessing the final exit of quite another sort of celebrity, though one whose last departure from life's stage attracted not a little attention from the theater-goers of forty years ago—Lydia Thompson. Lily Hanbury, too, has left the world across the footlights as has Mrs. George C. Howard, who, on Sept. 27, 1852, appeared at Troy, N. Y., as the very first of the hundreds of "Topsys" who since have capered to the joy of thousands. Marie Fischer, the violinist, and Jessie Shay, the pianist, and the Primas Lucca and Novello, are also to be coupled with these, while the "royal sort," fit to stand in the record with China's septuagenarian ruler, were the Lady Ichijo, mother to Japan's empress, the Duchess Elizabeth of Brunswick, and Mrs. William Astor—as truly a queen in her own realm as any be-crowned and be-titled one among them.

"By Violence."

Death has come, too, in sudden, violent guise to some of the great ones of the world, the first of the year's months bearing the horrible news of two assassinations, in Lisbon, of King Carlos of Portugal, and his heir, Prince Luiz. Quite as dreadful and perhaps full as far-reaching in its effects was the shooting down (March) of Durham White Stevens, Japan's counselor in Korea, by a native of that hermit Kingdom, who had "trailed his game" across the Pacific and into San Francisco, thinking he could in no other way "revenge" his unhappy land.

An even score of other items not dissimilar to such ugly happenings as these may be chronicled:

Former Senator Carmack of Tennessee, shot in a Memphis street (November).

The Swiss painter, Mangold, stabbed to death in Geneva. (June).

Harro Magnussen, the sculptor, strangled in his Berlin home. (November).

Adolphe Steinheil, the French artist, murdered in Paris. (May).

Osman Pasha, general of the Turkish Saloniki corps, assassinated (July).

Archbishop Nikon, ex-arch of Georgia, shot by Tiflis revolutionists.

Sayid Muhammid, "The Persian Mirabeau," assassinated at Hamadan (July).

Julian Beak, millionaire journalist of St. Petersburg, committed suicide (May).

Theodore Dalnchen, a Berlin novelist, committed suicide. (September).

Major General Luard of the British army, committed suicide. (September).

James Wallick, prominent in melodramatic plays, committed suicide. (May).

Samuel E. Moffett, journalist, drowned off the New Jersey coast. (August).

J. B. Jackson, a Pittsburg capitalist, thrown by his horse. (October).

Rev. G. B. Morgan of New Haven, killed by an automobile. (November).

D. D. Thompson of the Northwestern Advocate, killed by an automobile. (November).

Cedrino, professional automobilist, killed at the Baltimore races. (May).

Lieutenant Fonseca of the Brazilian army, fell from a balloon. (May).

Paralleling this last mentioned catastrophe was the death of Lieut. T. E. Selfridge, U. S. A., in the collapse of the Wright aeroplane at Fort Myer, in September; he was probably the most widely informed man in America on aviation questions. Of equal loss to the world of scientific achievement was the death (by starvation) of Mylius Erichsen, the Dane, who had undertaken the exploring and charting of northeastern Greenland for his government. Real scholarship is distinctly the poorer for the self-destruction of John Churton Collins, critic and biographical writer and "expert" in all things Elizabethan.

"With the Mighty Dead."

As the year's demands upon the living to augment the long roll of the mighty dead, have touched young as well as old, and reached out to all corners of the earth, so, too, have they struck at all ranks of the world's varied activities. Captains of industry have been called from their great plans, generals and admirals have received their last discharge, politicians and diplomats, churchmen and reformers, scientists and artists, novelists and poets, historians and journalists, actors and musicians—all have ceased those labors because of which their names are today recalled with grateful affection.

The complete list is but catalogic at best—yet is each of its fourteen score items fit text for memory and thought.

Nor has the field of sports been immune. If Cedrino will never again push his roaring car close round heart-wrecking curves, neither will "Old Tom" Morris, Nestor of all England's links, ever more follow the elusive white ball. George Augustus Allen, so closely identified with all that was best in undergraduate sports, for a generation, and more, died in August. Tom Bridger Chadwick, "Father of Baseball," in April, and the world-famous chess "Master," Tchigorin, of Russia, in the first of the twelve months.

As one reads down such a roster as this, is there not, however, a thought other than only that of loss? It looks, indeed, an entry to debit, telling of deprivation properly called immense, but what of the credit items which these same 277 men and women have inscribed "to the good" of the world as their lives have measured from their lengths to this, the final closing? "We do nothing," wrote the Latin moralist, some twenty centuries or more ago, "that does not count for something—good or bad; each day decrees anew that we make better or worse the world in which we move." Be this same ancient (yet still true) token, have not they who now have left these scenes played unchidingly their parts in the ultimate bettering of all life's drama?

HOW TO TREAT A CHAPERON.

From Lippincott's.

The system of supporting a chaperon is costly and even luxurious in the incipient stages of the working, while expensive need not be considered in the light of a hopeless undertaking.

Many persons think a chaperon may be dispensed with; others that they are absolutely necessary. Sometimes the young man likes to have a chaperon along. With some girls it is a great deal safer.

If the chaperon is young and handsome and only slightly married herself, she may be a great addition. In case she not—back on wag at a critical moment, you can fall back on the chaperon. Chaperons of this description betray a world of sympathy during these periods.

If she is old and inevitable, do not ignore her too much. Remember that chaperons have feelings. Feed her up well, and if possible give her a mild knock-out drop early in the evening.

Occasionally a chaperon will happen who has a New England conscience. A New England conscience, by the way, is the kind that never enjoys itself unless every one else is miserable. Just as you get a fine hold on the girl and—in to kiss her like a rapid-fire machine gun, the chaperon will begin to push icebergs on your starboard bow, and the lovely aurora borealis you have been wading at will get frapped. In this emergency, devote yourself for a few moments to the chaperon herself. Kiss her, remembering that the only way you can achieve liberty is by risking death. She will either faint away or subside.

If she, by any possibility, [illegible] the girl's parents on you, insist upon her doing this at once, not omitting the details.

While she is doing this you can make your final arrangements, including the rope ladder, the cloudy night, the six-cylinder runabout, the usual press notices, and the indignant father's final forgiveness.

HIS SHIRT A MENAGERIE.

"Bath House" John's, With Embroidered Animals, Cost $500 a Dozen.

Chicago Dispatch to the New York Times.

"Menagerie shirts is the latest thing in manly haberdashery," Alderman John J. Coughlin, "the Bath House," is the originator of it.

He has been measured for a dozen of the new creations, the cost of which will be $500. A Paris shirtmaker in New York will make the garments. One of the firm's representatives came all the way from New York to Chicago to take the alderman's measure.

Rivaling the dreadnought effect of the new garment will be a hand-embroidered menagerie (symbolical of the alderman's amusement) park at Colorado Springs. There are 30 or 40 different kinds of animals at the park, and each of these will be embroidered on some part of the shirt.

Another feature is that the bosoms of the shirts will each contain 30 plaits.

"Yes, I have ordered a dozen shirts," the alderman said, "but as I am going to wear them myself, I don't see that it is anybody's business but my own. I originated the idea of a menagerie shirt and I expect it will jump into popularity at once."

"The Bath House" has not decided the manner in which he will alternate the wearing of the shirts. It was suggested, however, that on certain days he hold annual receptions at his zoo, and that on the monkey day he wear the monkey shirt, and in this fashion proceed through the category.

HYPNOTISM IN HIGH FINANCE.

Los Angeles Dispatch to the New York World.

Hypnotism, it is alleged in a suit filed in the superior court, was used by H. W. H. Price to gain [illegible] the Guerrero Land Development company whose stockholders seek an accounting for $94,000 of their money.

Price is accused of having exercised psychic powers to make himself president, treasurer and general manager and the petitioners ask an order ousting him and the board of directors.

R. C. Hatch, who initiated the suit, declares the minds of the directors are controlled by the doctor, who, he alleges, charged commissions amounting to 50 per cent, debited large sums to his expense account, and made the company pay the cost for his private [illegible].

Uncle Sam's Progressive Machinery

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—During the past week the United States bureau of engraving and printing has been installing two marvelous machinery inventions which will do away with the work of many employes. The geometrical lathe is one of the crowning features of American invention. This wonderful apparatus produces automatically the intricate designs on the reverse of our greenbacks. It not only does this automatically, but does it in about one-tenth the time. This is the first photograph ever permitted to be made of the lathe.

The power press, operated by electricity will do the plate printing of our postage stamps, etc., many times as rapidly as it has been possible to do it on the old-fashioned hand presses in exclusive use at the government printery.

Necessity is the mother of invention the same today as it has always been. When Uncle Sam found he was in need of immediate currency and unable to supply this, something had to be done, and the geometrical lathe is the result. With this machine it will be able far more efficiently to supply the hurry-up demands for greenbacks in case of a currency famine which sometimes occurs.

The director of the bureau of printing and engraving, under whose progressive policy these machines have been adopted, deserves the greatest credit in keeping the United States far ahead of the other countries in the matter of a thoroughly equipped printing and engraving plant.

"1.0 PLACE FOR BOYS"

Dr. David Starr Jordan Believes Universities Are for Men Alone.

From the New York Tribune.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of the Leland Stanford Junior university, said in an interview Tuesday, that in the development of American universities, educators must separate the lower two classes from the upper two, the freshman and sophomore years to be absorbed by small colleges or enough rural high schools, while the junior year, the first in university training. He said the universities should receive only men, not boys.

Dr. Jordan gave as his chief reason for this change the fact that the majority of students entering freshman classes in the American universities are not prepared for the professional and technical training.

"A true university," continued Dr. Jordan, "is an institution for professional and technical research training, and therefore has an immense library and well equipped laboratories. These are of no use to the freshman and sophomore now because they lack the training to avail themselves of such facilities.

"My firm belief is that along these general lines the American university will develop."

Dr. Jordan is here to attend the meeting in this city of the Carnegie foundation, of which he is vice chairman, after which he goes to Washington, in connection with work on which he was engaged all summer as the American representative on the international fisheries commission. He spent the day in conference with Prof. E. E. Prince, the Canadian member of the commission, who arrived in the morning from Ottawa.

The treaty of April 11, between the United States government and Great Britain, provided for the appointment of a fisheries commission to draw up uniform international laws to govern boundaries of waters, and secretary Root appointed Dr. Jordan last July to represent this country. He took a two months' trip, starting in that month from Passamaquoddy bay, between Maine and New Brunswick, and followed the Canadian border to Puget Sound.

Dr. Jordan's policy will tend toward less restriction and greater hatching of fish in the great lakes. The fisheries question at Puget Sound, he said, presents many difficulties, owing to local problems in Oregon existing between the gill-netters and fish-wheel men, who are the large owners.

After the meeting at Washington, which begins on Monday, the commissioners will submit reports to their respective governments.

PUZZLE PAPERS ABOVE PAGE-LEVEL

Hadley (Mass.) Dispatch to the New York World.

That American commercialism taints even the country's literature was a leading thought of an address on "The New Literature," given before Mount Holyoke college girls at Founders' day exercises, by Bliss Perry, editor of the Atlantic Monthly.

"Prosperity is an excellent watchword, but the muses have seldom been inspired by the full dinner pail and the rising market," said Mr. Perry. "The admiration for material forces, for heavier battleships and deeper subways and swifter transportation has resulted in no noble verse.

"The new literature isn't yet representative of the best thinking and feeling of the country. The magazines are more immediately representative, no doubt, than books, but they are less truly representative than the newspapers. The daily press gives a more adequate and, upon the whole, a more reassuring indication of the trend of contemporary affairs than do the magazines.

"Imagination is playing all around us like heat lightning—imagination in business, imagination in science and in social reconstruction. But with a few rare exceptions, like Mark Twain, literature has not attracted map broad minded enough to understand the full spirit of American democracy."

There was ice of inches thick on the Thames in England in 1864, and in 1684 the ice was again thick enough on the Thames to support coaches which were driven across it.

THE MAY CO.

COAT WEEK CENTURIES

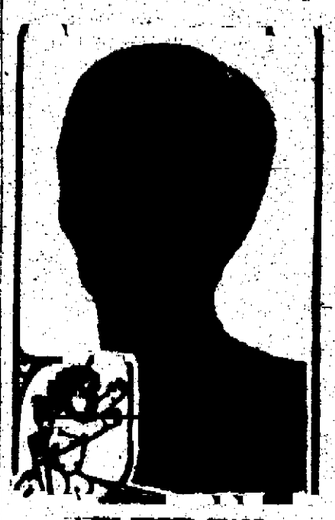
Enough for 4,000 Years at Rate of Production of 1907.

From the Philadelphia Record.

Geologists who are presumed to be great economists, or economists who are supposed to be eminent geologists, try to scare the world from time to time by spreading the steady exhaustion of coal or gold or timber. We are using all of them lavishly, and so far as we know, nature is producing no additional minerals. The forests are not being replaced as fast as they are cut off, but it can be done sufficiently alarmed about the interests of posterity, and the mineral wealth of the world is greater than alarmists have calculated. About 50 years ago England was warned that she was approaching the end of her coal supply, but she is still able to produce enormously in excess of her own requirements. Twenty-two years ago the world was warned that no more large finds of gold were possible, and since then the South African and the Alaskan fields have been discovered and most of the older gold regions have greatly increased their output.

The preliminary report on the mineral resources of the United States for 1907 is distinctly reassuring. Mr. Campbell calculates that at the end of last year there was easily accessible in the fields of the United States nearly two million million tons of coal, or enough to last more than 4,000 years at the rate of production in 1907. As to the state, and particularly in regard to anthracite, the calculations are much less satisfactory, but he believes the bituminous coal in this state would last nearly 500 years at last year's rate of production. The rate is increasing every year, but two or three centuries is as far ahead as we need to look. When we think of the economy of fuel in the use of gas engines, of the possibilities of electric power generated at waterfalls, and the possibilities of the solar engine, we feel that we need not be anxious about our descendants beyond the year 1500. He estimates that the anthracite would not last 200 years at last year's rate and without waste. But there is waste, and last year's rate will be exceeded. Still, if it shall hold out a century we may expect the world to have other means of generating smokeless heat and power by the time all the hard coal is gone.

Social Extension Society Tabooes City Youths



MISS ETHEL WALL.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 21.—"Social Extension" in country houses because they are displeased with the ways of the "city youth," is the latest movement in extension work. It has been adopted by a half dozen handsome Des Moines girls under the leadership of Miss Ethel Wall.

"Away they say, with the frail youth with puffed trousers and padded coat shoulders. They want the society of men of real brawn, brain and heart. Their first excursion was this week to the country home of Miss Wall's parents near Berwick. There some of the country youth had been invited in for the evening and the girls returned pleased with the experiment.

Not that they intend to entirely boycott city youths, but only to make them understand that they have a higher standard for male associates than those who smoke cigarettes and can only discuss football, baseball and sports.

"We want to know men who are acquainted with the realities of life," said one of the girls. "Of course, we are all too young and are not contemplating marriage, but we want to be in the society of men who are real workers and real economists. We are tired of the foppishness of many of the city youths."

Then the girls are studying domestic science and preparing to be as well informed about home as worldly affairs. They want an improvement in society. They long for the hero who stammers and blushes before the girl's smiles. They have failed to find him in the city. So they have gone to the country. They expect to make excursions to the rural district about every two weeks to the homes of friends and will later entertain some of the country boys in town.

A young man of Vienna who promised his aged aunt that he would never part with any treasures she might bequeath to him now finds at her death that he has taken upon himself the care of 36 cats.

What Press Agents Say

KATHRYN OSTERMAN IN "THE NIGHT OF THE PLAY"

Kathryn Osterman, an actress admired all over the land for her talent and sparkle and a favorite wherever she appears, has a new comedy in which she is reported to be making the hit of her life. Not only her a most congenial part, but the piece itself is said to be an uncommonly diverting one with an unceasing flow of fun. It is called "The Night of the Play," and is a German adaptation of Augustin Daly. Its story is that of an ambitious woman who strives to write a play without her husband's knowledge. She calls upon a literary friend to help her and stirs a train of mirthful complications that never cease until the end of the play. The poet's sweetheart grows jealous, and these cross purposes are intensified by the wife's desire to straighten them out in a secret manner. Miss Osterman as is customary with this clever artist, wears some magnificent gowns in her delightful comedy. The mirth-communicating comedienne comes to the Opera House Christmas matinee and night.

"JUST OUT OF COLLEGE."

One of George Ade's latest contributions to the stage has its second local performance the coming Saturday night at the Opera House.

Mr. Ade has struck a fresh lead in his comedies that extends not only to story and treatment, but also includes types of character. In this work will be found quite a number of these personages. The hero of his graduation begins to carve out his career in life and quickly proves himself a rather energetic artist in the carving way. A start, which at once enlists attention from the sentimental side, is his falling in love. In the ordinary stage work this comes in at a much more subsequent phase of the proceedings but Mr. Ade likes to make new departures, and in this case has not neglected his liking. But while there is usually a quaintness about people when they get entangled in the meshes of affection, the author of "Just Out of College" is not prevented by this from bringing out striking traits in the hero's character.

"THE RIVALS" COMING.

The writers of comedy these days have not improved upon the work of a century and a quarter ago when Richard Brinsley Sheridan penned "The Rivals." The natural and unctuous humor in this play is caused by the inborn bravery of Bob Acres, the quaint, infectious manner of the prince of Irish gentlemen, Sir Lucius O'Trigger, the blustering Sir Anthony Absolute, and the awful mutilation of the king's English by Mrs. Malaprop, while the numerous complications of the plot are as laughable as they were 40 years ago, when the illustrious actor, the late Joseph Jefferson, first made his fame as "Fighting Bob" in "The Rivals." Two of his sons have succeeded him and are now appearing in this comedy with phenomenal success. William W. is the Bob Acres, while Joseph appears as Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and the rest of the parts are portrayed by most capable artists and a performance of more than ordinary interest may be expected when the Jefferson boys present "The Rivals" at the Opera House next week.

CRYSTAL THEATER

The program for today will be a live one. The musical part of the entertainment is what seems to interest the people just now, judging from the crowds that attend. Of course, every so many more people go to the matinees now, to get the tickets they are giving away on those handsome tea sets and candy. A dead-sure thing, you know, for nothing; even better than the souvenirs they were giving away.

After the overture by the orchestra a most instructive and interesting picture will be shown, "The Cocoa Industry."

Then a solo, "Blow the Smoke Away" with quartet.

After that, two laughable comic stories, "The Electric Belt" and "Followers of Women."

The illustrated song, "Star of My Love," will follow, sung by Wilson, with quartet chorus.

While you are waiting for another picture Wilson and Keyes will entertain you with their splendid mandolin and guitar work.

Then comes the feature picture, "Sheridan's Ride," a great war story, and the pretty little Christmas story, "Slumberland."

The program will be concluded by a solo and duet, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," sung by Wilson and Keyes, with mandolin and guitar accompaniment.

And only 10 cents. Candy, a bag of candy with every child's matinee ticket, all the week.

"AFTER MANY YEARS" AT FAIRYLAND

For today and tomorrow Manager Vaden presents as the feature film, a picture that will please every child. There is hardly a child in Colorado Springs who has not read or at least heard of De Foe's famous hero, Robinson Crusoe. This picture story is very much like it, therefore, it will please everybody.

The beautiful picture here presents a subject on the lines of "Enoch Arden" although more intensely heart-stirring than the original story. The scenes are extremely picturesque, and some of the incidents startling in their lucidness. John Davis, first mate of the brig "Gifford," is seen bidding his wife and infant child a tearful adieu on the eve of the sailing of his ship. Caught in a terrible storm in the Pacific ocean, the vessel is wrecked and all on board are supposed to have been drowned at least, so the newspapers chronicled.

What a blow this was to the wife, waiting for her dear one's return. Although the evidence was apparently conclusive, still she could not reconcile herself to the fact that her husband had gone from her forever, something in her heart tells that he still lives and in truth for we see the poor shipwrecked mariner cast up by the seething sea on a desert island in the western ocean. Here he spent seven long, weary years, worse off than DeFoe's famous hero, Robinson Crusoe for he at least enjoyed the companionship of "Friday," but Davis was all alone.

Words cannot do this beautiful picture-story justice as it covers 1,030 feet of film to show it. You will have to go to Fairyland and see it, as it is more than worth the price of admission. Beside, there are four other fine pictures and new illustrated song.

The Fairyland Stock company presents a new sketch entitled "It's Up to You." If you want a good hearty laugh then it is up to you to see this comedy.

In the future the numbers will be given out in the afternoon for the iridescent table ware and in the evening for the dinner set, and the set of iridescent ware will be given away Monday night and the dinner sets Thursday night. There will be a special Christmas souvenir matinee for ladies and children. Next Wednesday the ladies will receive a beautiful ruby and gold heart jewel box, loving cup and slipper or Lys tray with gold letters. Fairyland Merry Christmas" and the children will all receive a present. Children are especially invited to Fairyland during the holiday vacation.

MRS. M'RANEY'S EXPERIENCE.

Mrs. M. McRaney, Pittsburg, Mich., writes: I was confined to my bed for three months with kidney and bladder trouble and was treated by two physicians but failed to get relief. No human tongue can tell how I suffered and I had given up hope of ever getting well until I began taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. After taking two bottles I felt like a new person and feel it my duty to tell suffering women what Foley's Kidney Remedy did for me. Sold by all druggists.

COURT'S CURE FOR BAD BOYS.

Atlantic City Dispatch to the New York World:

In his endeavor to halt depredations by small boys, Recorder Bates introduced a novel method when he released Victor Pickard, William Hagerman, Owen Jessup and Henry Wagner, all under 12 years of age, and arrested for malicious mischief, and appointed them special juvenile policemen to keep watch over other mischievous lads.

LIQUIDATION IS BEGUN

MEANING OF MOVEMENT DIFFICULT TO DETERMINE.

Stocks Are Sold Regardless of Price, Money Market Unchanged.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Today's stock market bore on the face of it evidence of important speculative liquidation. Conjecture was a good deal divided as to the course of this question, but there was no difference of opinion as to the fact. The apparent disregard of the effect on prices of the sailing list plausibility to a supposition that holdings were being sold out that had been acquired at an early period of the advance in prices.

The formation of a powerful stock market pool was rumored at an early period in the summer, having among its several purposes to demonstrate a return of confidence in the financial outlook with the object of cultivating the conditions which should conduce to success in proposed financial flotations and in a general way, to give a start to the restoration of conditions which had been impaired by the financial upheaval of last year. The stock market has given almost constant indication ever since that period of fostering protection against adverse factors of depression and of encouragement and inducement for buying and advancing prices.

The exact meaning of the present liquidation is difficult to determine. That it is prompted by fears of any effective backset in the progress of improvement in general business is not believed. It is attributed rather to a recognition that the advance in prices had been carried beyond a point warranted by progress in recuperation of business even in its most favorable aspect, and this point has been dwelt upon with increasing urgency by the financial world. The very substantial appetite of capital for investment, which is a present feature of the situation, is a strong factor of the Association of restoring confidence. The rise in money rates has done away with the urgency of bankers to lend money, which was a positive force for a long time in injecting resources into the stock market.

Rumors of the illness of E. H. Harriman, although authoritatively denied, had some sinister effect on values, which seems unavoidable in view of the almost fantastic extent to which Mr. Harriman's alleged single activities have influenced the rise in almost every department of the list.

The nature of Andrew Carnegie's testimony in the tariff hearings at Washington served to emphasize the feeling that the proposed tariff revision is widening in its scope and in its expected effect. The confirmation of the purchase of the Colorado & Southern by the Burlington seemed to hurt the Hill stocks, which would presumably be the beneficiaries from a favorable result of this project.

The money market showed no further advance in rates, but the subtreasury continued to withdraw funds from the money market, and foreign exchange rose to a point which enabled bankers to engage in gold shipment to Paris on Wednesday. The extensive short interest built up in the course of the advance, being made the basis for the partial recovery, which much lessened the extreme losses. The closing, tone, however, was irregular.

Total sales, par value, $8,262,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

MORE POWERFUL MACHINERY

New Plant May Be Installed by Gold Issue Mining Co.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Dec. 21. Superintendent W. A. Allen of the Gold Issue Gold Mining company is making preparations for the installation of a new and more powerful hoisting plant at the main shaft on the Midget Gold Mining company's estate, on the western slope of Gold hill. The shaft on this property has been sunk to a depth of 900 feet, and the present lease, covering a three-year period, is limited to this depth. An extensive plan of development has been mapped out for the mine, and it has been necessary to arrange for the larger plant.

WHEAT CLOSES STRONG

HEAVY BUYING FORCES PRICES TO HIGHER POINT.

Final Quotations Are Up 2 1-4 to 2 1-8c at the Close Corn, Oats and Provisions Firm.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Buying by several of the leading holders caused the wheat market to close strong today, final quotations being up 2¼ to 2⅛. Corn, oats and provisions closed firm.

Trade in the wheat pit was dull the greater part of the day, but became moderately active during the final half hour, when prices advanced to the highest point of the day. The close was at almost the best prices, with May at $1.00⅝@¾ and July at 93¾.

Throughout the greater part of the session a Christmas dullness prevailed, and sentiment was bearish. The visible supply of wheat in the United States showed an increase of 403,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 901,000 bushels, compared with 1,066,000 bushels the corresponding day a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 527 cars, against 625 cars last week and 588 cars a year ago.

The corn market opened weak, but became firm before the end of the first hour and continued firm the balance of the day. The market closed strong, with prices ¼ to ⅜c above the previous close. May closed at 60@60¼ and July 60½. Local receipts were 472 cars, with three of contract grade.

An improved shipping demand for the cash grain had a bullish effect on the oats market, the close being strong, with prices up ¼ to ⅜. Final quotations on May were 51@51¼ and July 46¼. Local receipts were 224 cars.

Provisions were firm the entire day. Prices at the close showed net gains of 5 to 15c.

A PERSONAL APPEAL.

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Sold by all druggists.

It has been stated in the Calcutta press that the government railways in India will next year use coal brought to India by steamer from Natal, because it is better than Bengal coal and more economical.

Bread Making in Other Lands

II—IN THE ORIENT.

No more striking primitive form of bread-making is to be found in the world today than that of Syria. Here the natives make bread out of the same materials, over the same type of stove, as their forefathers did 5,000 years ago. The above view is, indeed, characteristic of the oriental home on baking day. The whole family helps.

The father is sitting on the ground and is putting new fuel on the fire over which the bread is baked. The mother, with her little child on her shoulder, stands near the wall looking on. One of the daughters is kneading the dough, while the boy in the doorway is an interested spectator. The hearth is simply two stones raised on end, over which the iron plate is laid, on which the bread is baked.

NEW SHAFT HOUSE INCLOSED

Machinery for Friday Mining Co. Is Being Installed.

Special to The Gazette.

ALTMAN, Dec. 21.—The new shaft house under construction by the Friday Mining company, on the claim of that name on Tenderfoot hill, has been inclosed, and the workmen employed are busy installing the mine machinery, boiler, hoist and compressor. A dyke of low-grade milling ore has been opened up in the Friday shaft, and, with the machinery in operation, machine drills will be used in the development of the mine.

The Friday company is a Denver corporation operating this property under bond and lease from the White City Gold Mining company, an Illinois corporation.

TRIAL SHIPMENT GOES OUT

Special to The Gazette.

ANACONDA, Dec. 21.—A trial shipment will be loaded out on Saturday from the Union Leasing company's lease on the Roxanna Gold Mining company's Mountain Monarch and North Star claims. Operating through the Monarch shaft, the leasing company is mining a high-grade ore from a flat vein recently encountered on the North Star claim. The assays have been showing values ranging from two to six ounces gold to the ton, and the first shipment of 20 tons is estimated at two-ounce ore.

REVIVING SOME NEGLECTED LANGUAGES

From the Chicago News.

This century is witnessing a revival of neglected languages. A writer says: "There are no less than nine almost forgotten tongues which since the beginning of the Nineteenth century have retaken their places, politically and in literature, among the languages of modern Europe. The nine are Greek, Roumanian, Bulgarian, Servian, Magyar, Czech, Finnish, Norsk, and Finnish. The list does not include Gaelic, which is now experiencing resuscitation in some parts of Ireland at the hands of Gaelic societies, which achieved a political and literary revival in Galicia. The nine languages first named are now used by 60,000,000 of people—a fact which does not suggest much likelihood of the approach of a universal language.

"At the beginning of the nineteenth century the statesmen of Europe, almost without exception, held that the extinction of the smaller languages, which had already ceased to hold a place in courts or general literature, was desirable on political grounds. In Europe, French, English, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Russian, Turkish, Dutch, Danish, and Swedish were the only languages recognized as European, either in an official or literary sense. The last five were almost unknown outside of their own lands, and even there they were nearly without literary use. French was the universal language of diplomacy and of the educated classes everywhere in conversation.

"In Hungary and in Poland, even before the loss of independence, Latin was the official language of public business and law, and German or French that of conversation for the educated classes. The Irish language in Ireland during the eighteenth century had a position not unlike that of Latin in Ireland during the Eighteenth century. Conditions were similar with the old national languages of the various states of the Austrian dominions, of the Christian races in Turkey, and [illegible] Belgium and Norway.

Virtue of Moderation

The cause of dangerous inflation, demoralizing extravagance, and luxury, unrest, discontent, agitation, envy, hysteria and collapse, is getting rich quickly. Facts are the basis of true prosperity, sound industrial and financial conditions, and a higher civilization, it is getting rich slowly. The foundation of a fortune may be laid by depositing savings with THE ASSURANCE SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, which pays 4 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually.

To enter the game you need only to put a short ad in the Gazette.
Have you anything you don't want?
Is there anything you do want?
Have you an extra watch you would like to exchange for a shotgun?
Have you books you'd exchange for a phonograph?
A bicycle for a violin?
A maltese cat for a canary bird?
Why not exchange the one for the other?
You'll profit and so will the other fellow.
An exchange ad in the Gazette will quickly bring you both together. You'll be rid of something for which you no longer have any use, and in its stead you'll have something you very much desire to own.
